Twin Spearheads Crash St. Sauveur le Vicomte

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE (AP)—A surprise break throughout by U.S. troops which smashed through St. Sauveur le Vicomte had virtually cut the whole Cherbourg Peninsula in two tonight as field dispatches reported the assault was fanning out onto highlands in sight of the west coast beaches.

A Reuters correspondent with the spearhead forces reported the capture of St. Jacques de Nehou, six miles northwest of St. Sauveur, while a second force smashed towards St. Lo-d'Ourville on the coast, nine miles southwest of St. Sauveur.

German North Coast In State of Siege

LONDON (AP)—The Moscow radio, quoting a Tass news agency report from Stockholm, said today a state of siege has been proclaimed along the entire northern coast of Germany. Field Marshal Hermann Goering was reported touring the coast, accompanied by representatives of the army and navy, experts on military engineering, and the Todt (defence engineering) organization.

Britain Reorganizes Defences for Robots

LONDON (CP)—Britain's anti-aircraft defences have been reorganized to combat Germany's pilotless planes. New gun-sites have been chosen for some guns to obtain a maximum fire power against the robot planes before they reach populated areas. Guns of all calibre are being fired and at night often are in conjunction with searchlights. Machineguns, 22 millimetre and 40-millimetre Bofors, heavy and super-heavy guns and even rocket anti-aircraft guns, manned at night by Home Guards have been used successfully in the Channel straits area. Gunners at anti-aircraft sites use the same instruments in charting the course of the pilotless planes as they do with ordinary planes. New gun drills for anti-aircraft engagements which were introduced as far back as last October when this technique was first studied, have been learned by all troops in the light of the raids during the past week. Fresh instructions to help the gunners in combating the pilotless aircraft were sent out this week-end. The switchover to flying bombs, which are easily identified, have straight courses and fly at a reasonable height, means that they are a target within range of all guns in a defended area.

Allied Communique No. 24

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCES (AP)—Allied forces have pushed deeply into Normandy, freeing St. Sauveur le Vicomte and villages east and west of Tilly-sur-Suelli. Communique No. 24 announced tonight.

Allied troops have reached the Vire-et Taute canal in an advance two miles south of Isigny.

The text: "Allied forces have pushed deeper into Normandy and villages east and west of Tilly-sur-Suelli have been freed of the enemy."

"Advancing two miles south of Isigny our troops have reached the Vire-et Taute canal."

"In the Cherbourg Peninsula St. Sauveur-le Vicomte has been liberated."

"Air operations were sharply curtailed from dawn to midday when bad weather obscured much of the battle area. Nevertheless, fighter-bombers and rocket-firing fighters attacked railway yards, motor convoys and bridges leading to the Cherbourg Peninsula."

"A convoy of horse-drawn vehicles was destroyed at La Traverserie and enemy machine-gun nests at Folligny were strafed."

"No enemy fighters were encountered during these operations."

"Shortly after noon medium forces of heavy bombers with fighter escort attacked seven enemy airfields in southern Normandy. Three enemy aircraft were destroyed. Two of our bombers and one fighter are missing."

"Other fighters destroyed a railroad bridge across the Comme canal."

"Early this morning coastal aircraft attacked enemy ship-ping in the Channel."

Nazis Withdrawn From Norway

STOCKHOLM (AP)—The free Norwegian legation reported today from 6,000 to 8,000 German troops were withdrawn from Norway three days after the Allied invasion of France, apparently to bolster forces in Denmark.

Trick tides and terrain today were reported to have held up the Allies, who must maintain a steady stream of supplies and reinforcements for the invasion forces expanding the beachheads in France. What the Allies have to contend with is shown in the above map.

Russians Battle Into 120 Towns In Offensive Against Finland Localities Captured Include Rail Centres

LONDON (AP)—Russian troops fought their way into more than 120 populated places on the Karelian Isthmus today in a continuation of their offensive against Finland, Moscow announced tonight.

The broadcast Soviet communique said the inhabited localities captured during the day included three railway stations.

There were no changes on other sectors of the front, Moscow said.

R.A.F. Fires 2 Minesweepers

LONDON (CP)—Two German minesweepers were left burning and an armed trawler was damaged today in an attack by canon-firing Beaufighters of the R.A.F. Coastal Command off the Netherlands coast. One plane is missing.

How Can Anyone Hold Back?

It's a queer home frontier who can see those pictures and the stories of our boys storming the beaches of France, and feel satisfied with himself. Just the first few lines of any story from the battlefront makes most men feel humble, unimportant and pretty futile in the scheme of things.

No matter what a fellow's doing to help win the war back home, no matter what the hours, or money, or task, he's got it soft and cosy by any comparison.

How can anybody at home hold back after seeing the news-pictures of our boys wading through the surf and the hell of machine gun fire in the chilly dawn, facing death every inch of the way?

No story, no broadcast, no picture can do justice to the bravery and sacrifice of those lads who are our protection in a terrible hour, even if it doesn't look like so terrible an hour from our

Logan Will Hang Sept. 18 For Bride's Knife-Murder

VANCOUVER (CP)—Robert Harold Logan, 42-year-old recluse, who had gone to school only one year and never read a book, was found guilty by an Assize Court jury on Friday of the murder of his bride of six weeks, Laura De-Geer Logan.

Chief Justice Wendell B. Farris sentenced him to hang on Sept. 18 in Oakalla Jail.

With the jury's verdict was a recommendation for mercy, "owing to temporary insanity."

More composed than he had been throughout the three days

Crown of Road Abnormally High

The abnormally high crown of the road at Lyall and Lampson streets, where Andre Gagnon, 14, and Robin Sim, 13, were fatally struck by an Army truck June 8, was said by Maj. R. McDonald, Royal Canadian Engineers, to have been possible to bring out any defect in the undercarriage of any vehicle striking it.

Maj. McDonald, who is president of the Army Court of Enquiry investigating the crash, was testifying this afternoon at the resumed inquest into the double fatality.

He told Coroner E. C. Hart and jury he had surveyed the road

NAZI PUP-TANK PROVES FLOPPER—Members of a British tank recovery unit on the Anzio beachhead look over another one of Hitler's "secret weapons" that proved a flop in practice. This one's a pup-sized tank, 12 feet long, 6 feet wide, 4 feet high, which carries about 800 pounds of explosives. Driver takes it as far as he dares, then leaps out, while tank proceeds to objective under radio control. Allies captured large numbers of them intact.

6 STORES TO SERVE YOU

M.P.'s Told Veterans' Welfare
Their Personal ResponsibilityOTTAWA (CP).—Commons members were told Friday that the duty of preparing for the return of service personnel to civilian life was the responsibility of every member and of every political party.The responsibility was placed on the shoulders of all by Pensions Minister Mackenzie, who said the government was ready to accept any reasonable and constructive changes in the government's re-establishment and rehabilitation programs.Mr. Mackenzie spoke after second reading had been given a bill establishing a veterans' affairs department to handle all matters concerning ex-service personnel.
The reading ended a three-day debate on the bill, and paved the way for clause by clause study of the measure.Defence Minister Ralston said the interest of the Defence Department in members of the returning force would not end with discharge. Steps already were being taken to protect their post-discharge interests.

THREE ADVISERS NAMED

Col. Ralston said the Defence Department had recently appointed three advisers on discharge affairs. The advisers would form a link in the chain leading from discharge to rehabilitation.Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative House Leader, said the "meshing" of the returning men and women into the social and economic life of the country was not going to be an easy task, but it would be made a little easier if all citizens did their part.Before the veterans' affairs debate was resumed, Revenue Minister Gibson outlined the terms of a tax convention between Canada and the United States, de-signed to avoid double succession and estate taxation.Minister of National Revenue Gibson read a statement in which he criticized a cartoon and editorial in the Toronto Globe and Mail regarding the Dominion government's wartime alcoholic beverage order. He said the editorial, published Friday, represented the federal government as being responsible for the fact the monthly ration of spirits authorized in Ontario was 13 ounces and in Quebec 80 ounces.

BANKING PROBE URGED

A proposal that the whole Canadian banking system be investigated by a Royal Commission, the Commons Banking Committee following disclosure of the disposal of a motion to disclose the aggregate inner reserves of the 10 chartered banks.The committee is considering a new bank act which would extend the charters of the banks for a 10-year period. E. E. Perley,
P.C., Qu'Appelle, Sask., proposed Friday that instead the charters be extended for two years only and that in the meantime a Royal Commission investigation be held with a view to determining how the banks could best assist all types of business."I think it is very important that the charters be extended for 10 years and that it be done this year," said Finance Minister Lalor.It was not a good thing to keep a state of uncertainty in the country about the status and powers of banks and the rights of the public in regard to banks.
In the new act the government had proposed important reforms and amendments which would, if approved, be of great value to agriculture and other primary producers, he said.Pound Nazi Bases
On Invasion Arc;
Hit Robot GunpitsBy AUSTIN BEALMEAR
SUPREME HEADQUARTERS,
ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE (AP)—U.S. heavy bombers pounded half a dozen Nazi airbases in a great arc extending nearly half way around the Normandy battle zone today.Six airfields in southern Normandy, the Paris area and near Boulogne were hit by around 1,000 heavy bombers after R.A.F.
and R.C.A.F. night raids on the Pas de Calais area.The Germans continued to hurl piloted planes against Britain in spite of a double-barrelled blow by Allied bombers against the sector in France from which they are launched.Clouds again hampered the bombers just as they did Friday when the heavies slashed at the Pas de Calais coast and three airfields in France, but the weather was somewhat improved and fighter-bombers ranged over and beyond the Normandy fighting zone in attacks on motor convoys, bridges, tanks, machine gun nests and a German airfield on the Cherbourg peninsula.

8 FIGHTERS LOST

Eight fighters failed to return from these late forenoon missions although one pilot landed safely behind the Allied lines.While R.A.F. and R.C.A.F.
heavy bombers hit at the enemy installations on the Pas de Calais coast Friday night others hammered a synthetic oil plant near Duisburg and targets in Berlin.Anet, the Netherlands news agency, said a Netherlands air officer in the R.A.F. reported one of the rocket plane bases was wrecked in an attack at Doullens.Thirty-three bombers were lost, of which two were Canadian, the Air Ministry said. An ME109, one of two enemy planes brought down, was credited to Flt. Lt.
Don Walz of Moose Jaw.The night blow against Pas-de-Calais came a few hours after U.S. heavy bombers in the last hours of daylight Friday pounded these same installations.The Germans kept their mysterious robot planes hurling across the Channel Friday night in a continuation of attacks kept up Friday and the previous night.
Damage and casualties were caused in several places in England.

BAD FLYING WEATHER

Although miserable flying weather once more hampered the air support of the invasion
Friday, Supreme Headquarters said 2,500 sorties were flown by Allied air units—about 1,000 of them by U.S. heavy bombers and their escorts in the twilight smash at the Pas-de-Calais.The night attack on Berlin was made by Mosquitoes, while British Lancasters and Halifaxes continued the Allied campaign aimed at drying up Hitler's war machine by dumping tons of explosives on the Fischer Troppsch synthetic oil plant at Sterkrade, about five miles north of Dues-sburg. It was second time this week the R.A.F. has been over Germany in strength.U.S. fighters also bombed and shot up railroads and truck convoys south of the beachhead.
The fighters demonstrated a new technique by dumping their auxiliary fuel tanks half full of gasoline on targets and then starting fires with incendiary bullets.R.A.F. bomber crews said opposition in the Ruhr area Friday night was as strong as ever.The Nazi fighters dropped what appeared to be a new type of flare over the path of the British bombers, and numerous combats ensued.Sask. Legislature To Meet In FallREGINA (CP)—A session of the new Saskatchewan Legislature after October is forecast by Premier-elect T. C. Douglas, whose C.C.F. party swept into power in the provincial general election Thursday.In a press conference Mr.
Douglas intimated proposed legislation would include an act to discourage centralization of property in the hands of mortgage companies and similar interests.
The C.C.F. program, however, would be worked out by stages with legislation suggested each year by each government department.Mr. Douglas conferred with Premier W. J. Patterson Friday.
The change of government likely will take effect in about three weeks.

Class of '44 Finds
This 'Bright New World'"It is somewhat frightening," says Georgina Moore, Oak Bay High School graduating class valedictorian, "to think of stepping forth into the war-torn world of today to make places for ourselves. We are the second class to graduate which has known only a wartime high school life."We, the class of 1944, have at last reached the first important milestone of our lives... Graduation. As we look forward eagerly to the unknown adventures of life to come, we also look back on the happy days we have spent here in Oak Bay High.
"Friendships have been made during the past four years, and many more will be made in our lifetime... but friendships of our youth seem much more dear and lasting than those of later life."By this time next year, the young men and women of our class will be scattered far and wide, each one seeking his own goal. Many of the boys, and perhaps some of the girls, will be in the services. Classmates left behind send with them best wishes for their success and prayers for their safety."To those who follow us, we say 'follow and do not falter.' We leave the school in your hands
... to uphold its traditions, to keep up its scholastic record, and above all, to keep its name worthy of respect. We are the men and women of a bright new world. Great responsibilities will be upon our shoulders... but we are strong... we are confident... and we are determined that we shall not fail."Georgina's valedictory features the 1944 issue of "The Oak Leaf."
Edited by Jean Hopkins and John Beckwith, summarizes school extra-curricular activities for the year, contains as well pupils best magazine as "the Rudolf Valena fine camera man as well."Cover design was executed by Maeford Wilson. Of Maeford, the year book says, "Dark, energetic, Maeford is a clever artist and will go to Banff Art School in September. Her wardrobe is something to drool over, and she shows good taste in all things."

Merriman Round-up...

SATURDAY NIGHT is British Columbia night for the Canadians in Britain, France and Italy. CBC broadcasts feature news of the regions across Canada on different days of the week with Saturday devoted to B.C. Thursday night the newscast consists of highlights of the week... The Baptist Church was once in the slave-owning business, a Vancouver clergyman reports. The church inhabited a farm in Bolivia and all the slaves working on it. It was some time before the church could free all the slaves because they didn't know where to go or what to do when freedom was offered to them.ALTHOUGH pawnbrokers are generally regarded as hard-time friends they prosper most in good times, Doug Welsh reports.
They get many more customers but more persons redeem the articles they leave with them now than they used to when times weren't so good. A lot of the customers are those seeking money until they get a war industry cheque at their first job after arriving in a new city. Boeing's and some of the other large plants have a loan service for such cases but many of the smaller plants haven't.
Soloists in church choirs are an irritation, according to J. A.
Stewart, 50 years a choirman. They were the plague and bane of his life. "I had more trouble from this class than all the choir put together," he says. "Using the choir as a vehicle for self-glorification is an all-too-common practice of would-be soloists..."REV. A. J. MACLACHLAN of Vancouver thinks recommendations for total deportation of the Japanese are un-Christian. "This is a vicious and insidious policy," he says, "providing no discrimination between the really undesirable elements and those Japanese worthy to live among us, who were born and educated here and who are real Canadians." He says it is time for the church to step into the breach on behalf of the Canadian-born Japanese... The telephone bell rang lustily and our office girl asked the chap on the other end of the wire: "What can I do for you?" "Please tell me the condition of Bruce Hutchison this morning," the gent on the other end asked. It was the morning after—the Saskatchewan election.

King Decorates Maj.-Gen. Keller Of 3rd Division

By ROSS MUNRO
WITH THE CANADIANS IN FRANCE (CP)—The King came to France Friday and in an open air investiture less than 10 miles from the nearest German positions made Maj.-Gen. R. F. L. Keller, leading the Canadian 3rd Division in the invasion of western Europe, a Commander of the British Empire.

Fresh from the front, Keller stood in battledress and khaki beret before the King who slipped over the head of the general from Kelowna, B.C., the pink C.B.E. ribbon from which hung a silver cross.

(Maj.-Gen. Keller's wife and son now reside in Victoria.) Five British officers and two British N.C.O.'s also were decorated in this unique investiture of the war, held on a lawn in a grove of trees with Spitfires maintaining a protective umbrella over the area. Some 400 officers and men drawn from five British and Canadian regiments formed an open square for the ceremony. The investiture took place in the early afternoon. The King, in the uniform of an Admiral of the Fleet, walked across the lawn with Gen. Montgomery, commander-in-chief of Allied ground forces.

Maj.-Gen. Keller, senior officer on parade, called the parade to attention and the King saluted. There was no band, no flags, no royal red carpet. It was a simple ceremony.

ASKS OF CASUALTIES

Gen. Montgomery stood by the King's side and called forward the eight men who were to be decorated. Montgomery read out Keller's history and called the general forward. After putting the ribbon over the general's head, the King spoke to Keller, congratulating him and asking him about the 3rd Division's part in the campaign and the casualties suffered by the Canadians.

Keller gave him the casualty figures, saying they were much lower than had been anticipated. Following the investiture, the King chatted informally with Montgomery and Keller, then Keller went back to the front in a jeep.

None of the awards was associated with actual fighting in France. Keller received his decoration in part for work done over the last year in planning the Normandy attack and experimenting with his division in coastal assault methods used in the Allied landing.

The King's visit had been kept secret. Working parties of troops on the beach looked up as Gen. Montgomery's open staff car drove past slowly, recognized the King and ran alongside cheering.

BLASTS SHAKE WALLS

With an escort of British and U.S. military police, armed with tommy guns, the King's car passed along the straight Normandy road, through the little villages of Graves-sur-Mer and Banville, which were in German hands only a few days ago.

Shells had wiped out many of the houses, and big bulldozers were busy widening the roads and filling in craters.

Gen. Montgomery took the King straight to his advanced headquarters.

While he and the King sat at lunch, shells screamed high overhead, and the chateau walls shook with the thud of heavy explosions.

After lunch, the King held the investiture in the chateau grounds.

By that time, news of the visit had spread and when the King drove back toward the beaches, again in an open car with Gen. Montgomery, there were many more troops on the roadside to cheer him.

In Tierceville and Courselles several little groups of Frenchmen and women and children gathered to wave and cheer.

Nelles Praises Beachhead Troops

OTTAWA (CP)—Vice-Admiral Percy W. Nelles, chief of the Canadian naval mission overseas, back from the invasion coast of Normandy, said on his arrival at nearby Rockliffe airport early this morning that while the invasion had gone according to plan, he was "surprised that the Hun didn't stiffen sooner."

"The organization that I saw on the beachhead was almost perfect, with everything going with precision," he said.

Admiral Nelles later made a full report on the invasion to Navy Minister Macdonald.

IT'S THE ECONOMY ENGINE

RIGHT ON THE HEELS of our advancing troops a cable-laying truck speeds up the road, spewing out telephone cable as it goes. At a cross-roads the operators leap out and erect poles to carry the cable, or bury it for safety beneath the roadway. Soon the network of communications is bringing in reports and carrying orders to the various army units.

A storm strikes in Canada, telephone poles crash to the ground, and vital threads of communication are broken. But in a few minutes a service truck is at the scene of the damage, wires are connected up and vital messages of a nation at war are again speeding from city to city or across a continent.

A very large percentage of the trucks which serve the Allied Nations here in Canada and on the far-flung battlefronts are rugged, dependable Ford Trucks. The power plant which drives these trucks is the Ford V-8 Engine.

This amazing piece of Ford engineering has been developed, improved, perfected through the years, and today it is setting new records of trouble-free performance. Above all it's the economy engine, easy on oil, and extremely saving of precious gasoline.

HUMANITY'S SECOND CHANCE

MR. ROOSEVELT HAS SUGGESTED THE mechanics of a plan by which a world organization of all "peace-loving" nations should be able to maintain peace and security—backed by force if necessary. It is intended as a basis of conversations at a meeting to which Secretary of State Cordell Hull recently invited Britain, the Soviet Union and China to send representatives. It marks the second phase which took initial shape after long discussions among members of an all-party Congressional committee over which Mr. Hull presided. The chief executive lists these three points of his broad proposal:

1. An international organization comprising all peace-loving nations.
2. A council, elected annually by these nations, to include the four major nations (Britain, the U.S., Russia and China) and "a suitable number of other nations."
3. An international court of justice to deal primarily with disputes capable of settlement.

"We are not thinking of a superstate with its own police force and other paraphernalia of coercive power," the President explained, but added that member nations of the world organization would maintain adequate forces "for joint action when necessary." In other words, and in its general design, Mr. Roosevelt envisages a reconstituted League of Nations with "teeth" in it. Nothing in his guarded reference to membership would seem to suggest domination by the "big four," as some representatives of the "smaller nations" had read into Mr. Hull's first announcement three weeks ago—a suspicion which the Secretary of State demolished immediately. The inclusion of "a suitable number of other nations" in the President's formula underscores the elastic character of the proposed global organization. Specific clarification of the term should be a simple matter at the proper time.

Although it is scarcely likely the heads of the four organizing states will be present at the proceedings to which Mr. Hull invited their representatives—since the erection of the scaffolding for the ultimate structure will demand much thought and meticulous planning—it may be assumed that at the Moscow, the Teheran, and the Cairo conferences the views of the major Allied leaders on an organization such as Mr. Roosevelt has outlined with skeleton detail came in for discussion. And in the light of the fact that Britain, Russia and China were members of the original League, its reduction to the status of a debating society notwithstanding, there is little they will be able to add to its operative clauses save determination to make it work this time.

The important question to be considered when the next plan acquires a practical working shape is what the people and Congress of the United States intend to do about it. Even Senator Henry Cabot Lodge praised the old world court, but, as Mr. Newton D. Baker reminded the Democratic nominating convention in 1924, "he did not want to go into it the way the Constitution provided; he did not want to go into it the way everybody else saw was the only way you could get there." Also, the Democrats wanted to "take the sense of the American people at a referendum election, advisory to the government"—a course which Baker flayed with all the fervor his belief in the League had provided him. The rest is history. Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Hull will play their part, of that there is no question, and one can only hope the great bulk of the American people do not intend to repeat the mistake of 1920.

SALUTE TO ICELAND

WHEREVER THERE ARE ICELANDERS or folk of Icelandic stock there will be much celebrating today. This June 17 marks the restoration of the Republic of that important island of free people in the north Atlantic. For theirs is the spirit of freedom. Its beginnings can be traced back to the fountain head of democracy in north central Europe—from which peoples migrated east, south and west, and across the seas. Wherever they went that same spirit guided them and took root in the new soil.

The historian reminds us that at an assembly of Althing—or parliament—in the year 1000, three groups met and deliberated: The heathens, who were the largest group, the Christians, and others who were more or less neutral. There these men of antiquity talked long. Something in the hearts of the heathens must have responded to the pleas of the Christians. Democracy and Christianity found a common chord. The story goes that the lawspeaker was assigned to find a basis of agreement. For 24 hours he conferred with no one—at least not of this world. He came back, made his report, and Christianity was adopted in Iceland. Not a sword was unsheathed, and not a drop of blood was spilled.

Rightly, then, do the Icelanders boast of a spirit that bows to the law—in the individual, in the national and in the international realms. They have followed its beacon light along the path of democratic evolution. So, Canada and Canadians salute them, wish them joy and prosperity, as their Republic prepares itself to take its place among the free nations of the world.

STERLING CITIZEN

FROM THE DAYS OF HIS EARLY TEENS until the recent illness from which he failed to rally, Charlie Wilson was known throughout Vancouver Island and in many other parts of the province, not only because of his inherent capacity to make and keep friends, but also because of the numerous activities in which he interested himself. Those who were privileged to know him intimately—and they were legion—understood and appreciated to the full his sterling qualities as a citizen, his thoughtfulness in all his human associations, and that liberal measure of good fellowship which helped him to enjoy life in its best sense. Nor was it surprising that these attributes were manifest in him; he came of a fine family whose members grew up with this capital city—and to whose business and civic progress they contributed much through their enterprise and high integrity in all their dealings. Charlie Wilson was a good citizen. He will be genuinely missed by countless sincere friends here and far afield. To his widow—ever generous in her response to calls for community service—and his family the Times extends its sympathy in their bereavement.

NOT QUITE NEUTRAL

WHEN MR. NUMAN MENEMENCOGLU took office as Turkey's Foreign Minister two years ago he was generally regarded as somewhat pro-German—although not necessarily anti-British. His resignation on Thursday, because the cabinet had expressed its official disapproval of his policy "during the last few days," lends weight to the earlier suspicion. The government in London had protested against the passage of German ships through the Dardanelles, which brought from Premier Sukru Saracoglu—who is now acting Foreign Minister, his old job—the assurance that the "might and right" of Turkey would not "be used against her ally, Great Britain, and her friends, Russia and the United States."

It is scarcely to be supposed the head of the Turkish government imagined this reference to the "might and right" of Turkey would be taken as a world-shaking pronouncement. It was obviously intended as a little political window-dressing—another of the intangibles that encourage the men of Ankara in their intense desire to remain physically neutral. In the not distant future, however, the question of the use of the Dardanelles may be one on which the Turkish government will have to express itself. Nearly eight years have elapsed since the remilitarization of the straits began—July 22, 1936, and on that day the balance of power in the eastern Mediterranean changed. By her command of the Dardanelles and the Sea of Marmara, Turkey holds the route which could link Russia with the Mediterranean, and the eastern front with the front moving continually northward in Italy. Unfortunately, in the military as well as the political sense, the Allies do not possess either Crete, the Dodecanese, or the Aegean islands—all close to Turkey.

Since the freeing of the Mediterranean for the unimpeded passage of Allied shipping, the importance of obtaining permission to use the Dardanelles, nevertheless, has been uppermost in many minds. But their status is governed by the Montreux convention of 1936—rescinding the provisions of the Treaty of Lausanne of 1923 which demilitarized them and stripped them of fortifications. The existing convention, however, guarantees complete liberty of passage for merchant vessels at all times, provided Turkey is not a belligerent. But if she thinks herself threatened by war, she can restrict the movements of merchant ships. As for war vessels, the littoral powers—Romania, Bulgaria and Russia—may send such ships through the straits if they pass singly, and with a maximum escort of two destroyers. To all this, however, there is an important reservation: If Turkey considers herself menaced by war, she may exercise her discretion about the passage of all warships. That she is doing.

DEMOCRACY CAN BE CRUEL

MR. JOHN BRACKEN, LEADER OF THE Progressive Conservative Party of Canada, says the C.C.F. victory in Saskatchewan was a "protest against the leaders of Liberalism." The former Premier of Manitoba, of course, is entitled to his own opinions and to give them voice. But the official organ of his party, "Public Opinion," in the issue published on the eve of the contest discussed the election in its leading editorial in part as follows:

"In Saskatchewan, the electors are getting a taste of something new—a form and style of leadership that is new and refreshing. In Rupert D. Ramsay, the leader of the Progressive Conservatives, they have something that is out of the old-fashioned mold. He, personally, is going about the business of building a provincial party with a zest and inspiration that characterizes no other leader in the province. It cannot be said of either Douglas or Patterson. Besides, Rupert Ramsay is the only one of the three leaders who is an agriculturalist, with a thorough understanding of the farm problems in an agricultural province. . . . The Progressive Conservatives are out to sell a thoroughly constructive program—leaving the older groups to throw the brick-bats. . . . Rupert Ramsay has done a magnificent job in picking candidates who are new to the field of political activity. . . . It is a new and very entertaining presentation to the people, and it will be interesting to see what the people have to say about it on June 13. We can only hope that Rupert Ramsay will fare as well as he deserves."

Whether Mr. Bracken is right or not, "Public Opinion" and Mr. Ramsay now know what the people thought about the Conservative leader's "form and style of leadership." While precious few Liberals will occupy seats in the next Legislature, the presence of not a single Conservative has graced the chamber since 1934. And it is passing strange that the Tory vote on Thursday was more than 10,000 less than in 1938—and no win in either appeal—Mr. Bracken notwithstanding. But that is how democracy works.

REGINA.

REGINA ON THE PLAIN

THIS CAPITAL city of Saskatchewan is commonly regarded by coastal travelers like this reporter as a stop on the railway, very early in the morning. You awake in your berth and look out on a few frozen trainmen being blown by a blizzard across the platform, and you pull down the blind and go to sleep again and thank a kindly Providence that you don't live there. At the mere memory of Regina you shudder.

Regina is the most libeled city in Canada. When one discovers, after a careful inspection, in summertime, that Regina is one of the most beautiful and agreeable little cities in America, it is a solemn duty to proclaim the fact to an astonished world. The proclamation is hereby made.

Regina is not only beautiful and agreeable, but it is a proof of man's better nature. Man made Regina. Nature had done practically nothing for it since the dawn of time. Man found here only a waste of hot, seared prairie, with a sluggish stream meandering through the bunch grass. It seemed possible to build here nothing but a prairie town, a few naked buildings on a windy plain. Among the early inhabitants of the town, however, were men of understanding who could not live without beauty. Patiently they set about beating Nature, and they have completely succeeded.

THE MEANDERING stream, once used only to water locomotives, turned out to be the key to the town's future. It was cunningly enlarged into a lake. Around the lake were planted trees. On the lake shore was reared the superb little Parliament building of the new province of Saskatchewan. Today the spectacle of this building, thrust up among the trees and reflected in the lake, is one of the finest in Canada. No other provincial government building approaches this in beauty. No setting is equal to it. Even the Parliament of Canada is housed in surroundings far inferior to these. Westminster on its Thames is more magnificent but not half so beautiful. The Parliament buildings in the other provinces, all time in their way, seem crowded into a narrow city lot in comparison with those of Regina.

Few of the capitals of the world can present such a sight. They all have their grounds and their trees, but few are reflected in a mirror of fresh water floating there with the shadows of the trees. Nowhere has man struggled with less promising materials and achieved so much.

"Everything was against man here," the empty, flat prairie, the burning drought, the devastating winter. But Regina has conquered all these enemies, sought out plants, shrubs and trees that will somehow endure the rage of the winter wind and, in the end, converted the centre of the city into a gracious summer resort, so that prairie children swim on sandy beaches a few yards from the business district, and play in their sailboats almost at the door of the Legislature. No other Canadian city, and perhaps no city anywhere, has done a comparable job against comparable obstacles.

YOU GO TO REGINA most unwillingly, expecting to find a huddle of habitation in a desert, and find instead something like a summer resort. But, of course, the physical shape of the city is a mere reflection of the character of the Regina people. They have seen terrible times here—the cyclone, the drought which left half their province bare of any growth for nearly 10 years, the great depression. Perhaps as a result, they have developed a keener edge to their politics than we have in other provinces and, up to recent times, everyone was labelled as a Tory or a Grit in a continuing feud. Lately, so the natives tell me, a softening process has been visible and Tories and Grits even enter each other's houses.

This process, one suspects, may date from the coming to Regina of a great Canadian, the late D. B. MacRae of the Leader Post, whose heart was large enough to compass all kinds of people, all parties and all creeds, and who opposed to the long drought and depression an inflexible good humor. MacRae was the funniest Canadian of his time. His quips, printed and unprinted, were the best produced here in modern times and only his modesty, his refusal to take himself seriously, prevented them from being collected in an immortal book.

Yet in secret, behind his laugh, his after-dinner speeches, his written jests, the heart of D.B. was broken by the drought and the misery he found in every parched prairie town. He seemed to think it was his mission on coming here to cheer everyone up. His death while he was yet in his prime was hastened by the spiritual exhaustion of this process. He left his mark not only on the physical look of the town, in the central park which he persuaded Regina to lay out, but on the temper of the people.

They are people unlike us coastal dwellers; leaner of mind, I think, never far from the soil around them, and they understand better than we do, because they are close to it always, that this nation lives on the sale of its products to the world at large.

USED CAR 'SQUEEZE'

From Toronto Star

Right now both Prices Board and R.C.M.P. are working hard to check a fast-growing black market in used cars. "It's the biggest threat we have," said Inspector Armitage. He told of two cases, one where a car was sold for $950 above the ceiling. In a trade-in "squeeze" the buyer was forced to sell his own reasonably good car for $10 before the dealer would sell him another one.

Today's WAR NEWS Analysis

By J. M. ROBERTS JR.

Associated Press War Analyst
The last 48 hours have brought a staggering amount of big news. The word "significant" has been written in the sky, on the land and sea and on the diplomatic front.

The Germans have launched the secret aerial weapons which allied Airmen tried for months to knock out. Even President Roosevelt's postwar plans were overshadowed by the wings of the B-29s and developments in France. Sensational reports about Gen. de Gaulle, revealing much of the temper of that man and why the Allies have been reluctant to go too far with him, received only passing attention.

USES CLUB

And now, in passing, there is only room to say that if Gen. de Gaulle continues to swing his military strength as a political club, promising and withdrawing according to the tides of negotiation, he will create one of the most critical military crises the Allies have had to face.

All of these, and Russia's resumed military activity, carry weights which almost founder attempts at correlation.

But off in the far Pacific and down in New Guinea the prologue has been spoken to a two-act play which, in less crowded days, would corner the headlines. Its full significance is not yet clear, but there is no mistaking that it is big.

The widespread attacks by sea and air from New Guinea to the Kuriles certainly seem to mean that Gen. MacArthur is preparing to keep his promise "I will return," and that Admiral Nimitz is clearing the flanks of the route back to the Philippines.

And, judging by progress since Tarawa, that return will be this year. No longer are Allied Pacific forces riding the locals from island to island. The Marianas offensive is an express stop from the Marshalls—1,000 miles—past Truk, once called Japan's "Pearl Harbor." After the Marianas comes Palau, reputed bastion on the right flank of MacArthur's route which also may prove to be no fortress, or possibly a direct move by the navy to meet MacArthur in the Philippines.

The Japanese war may see its climax in China and the home islands, but, just as we believe the European invasion brought the war there into its final phase, so we may be watching now the beginning of the end of the Pacific war proper.

The career of Saskatchewan's new premier-elect, Rev. T. C. Douglas—incidentally, he doesn't like the "revered" to be used in referring to him as a politician—is a Horatio Alger-like romance of a young printer's devil who rose to be a party leader when he was still under 40 years of age.

It was on the old Manitoba Free Press that young Douglas first sniffed printer's ink. He defied tradition by successfully getting it out of his nostrils without any return of his infection. Leaving his type cases before his apprenticeship was ever finished, he became a student—and has remained one—pretty much ever since. As evidence of his intellectual success he has his bachelor's degree and theological degree from Brandon College, his master's degree from McMaster University, and post-graduate credits from the University of Chicago.

SOON IN POLITICS

But while academic life in general and theology in particular was "Tommy" Douglas's second choice as a career, it was no more successful in holding his interest than was the printing trade. He was no sooner installed in the leading Baptist congregation in Weyburn than he was feeling his way into politics. As a gold medalist in his university days in debating, dramatics and oratory, he had no inconsiderable gifts of platform ability to offer. By 1935 he was elected to the House of Commons for the Weyburn constituency over the veteran Liberal campaigner F. J. Young. From that time his career as a churchman became definitely subordinate to his advancement in public life. As a matter of fact, as already related, he speedily developed a distaste to the use of the prefix "reverend" in referring to his exploits in the House of Commons. He preferred to be looked upon as simply a member of Parliament, not a dual clerical-political personality.

SPRANG SURPRISE

The success of "Tommy" Douglas in the Weyburn constituency in the 1935 election, with a flood tide of Liberalism rolling across the Dominion, was one of the surprises of the campaign. For years the seat had been represented by the hard-hitting Liberal free-trade crusader "Ed" Young. But "Ed" Young's sole political stock in trade consisted of hard-hitting, ably reasoned, assaults upon the tariff. Young Douglas—then was not yet in his middle thirties—started in to talk about new social ideals to Weyburn audiences. And the audiences were attracted to his broader viewpoint. "Tommy" Douglas's election was, in fact, one of the first intimations to political Ottawa that the west was commencing to think less in economic and more in social terms. In the 1940 election he again returned to the House of Commons, this time with a majority of almost 1,000. In contrast to his majority of only 300 in the 1935 vote.

His elevation to the post of a party leader came after George Williams, Saskatchewan C.C.F. leader, resigned his post to serve in the war. A provincial C.C.F. convention chose Douglas to succeed him. In the months that have passed since his selection he has emulated the precedent set by Hon. Mitchell F. Hepburn, who continued to sit in the federal House for some considerable time after his election as Ontario Liberal leader. Douglas only re-

Realtors Consider Marine Drive Plan

Members of the Real Estate Board will view plans for work and extension on a marine drive extending as far as Sidney, and will meet a group of salesmen from real estate firms as a result of two motions passed at a meeting of the board held in Spencer's dining-room Friday.

W. O. Wallace said the project would benefit Victoria and other municipalities. All construction of good roads, he said, would work in well with proposed rehabilitation.

Mal H. C. Holmes moved that Mr. Wallace be asked to bring a plan of the marine drive proposals so the board might see exactly what was being suggested.

R. H. Shanks, chairman of the board, urged the need for co-ordination on rehabilitation plans by the city, municipalities and the provincial government.

Other motion, made by M. H. King, was that two or three members be asked to approach salesmen of the real estate business seeking them to attend a meeting of the board in two weeks time, where, he said, they would see the benefit of the board work and would be able to put proposals and make suggestions from their own point of view.

Vancouver Real Estate Exchange Ltd., which had appealed to the regional oil controller for an increase in the gas ration for salesmen entirely engaged in selling farms, advised the board the controller had considered the AA and A coupons adequate. Victoria had one such salesman, said Hubert Lethaby, secretary, and pointed out the Victoria board had not sought the increase, but had been asked by the Vancouver exchange for a list of such salesmen.

Government decision on resolution of the Canadian Association of Real Estate Boards seeking an amendment in the Veterans' Land Act, which prevented duly licensed real estate operators from obtaining any remuneration for services rendered in the sale of any land to veterans through directors had not been learned, members were advised.

Experienced real estate men were needed to assist in settling a veteran on good farm land, it was said, as at the end of the last war many men had found themselves on land totally unsuitable for farming and had consequently incurred great loss.

In regard to housing accommodation, it was reported, chances of increase in permits and size of premises were not likely under present circumstances.

Discussion on amendments to the constitution of the board seeking greater jurisdiction over professional behavior of real estate agents was tabled pending further information on the matter.

Log-Buying Mills Score Log Exports At Inquiry

Disapproval of what he termed the "uncontrolled export of logs from British Columbia," which reached an all-time high in 1939 of 312,733,000 board feet, and which, if exported in the form of lumber would have meant an additional income of $2,600,000 to the province, was registered by Robert S. Whyte, Vancouver, representing a committee of two log-buying sawmills and their subsidiary mills, at the forest inquiry, before Mr. Justice Gordon McG. Sloan, royal commissioner, Thursday morning.

Discussing the export of logs in relation to postwar employment, local manufacturing and depletion of forest resources, Mr. Whyte told the inquiry that for the 10-year period 1930-1939, 83.5 per cent of export logs from B.C. originated on privileged crown-granted lands and that in 1939-91 per cent of export logs were cut on these lands.

When queried by H. W. Davey, counsel for the commission, Mr. Whyte said he represented the Westminster Ship Mill and the Mowhawk Lumber Company, whose combined annual normal capacity was 90,000,000 board feet. There, were, he said, 40 sawmills on Burrard Inlet and Vancouver Island, depending upon the open log market for logs.

"The 300,000,000 feet of logs now exported would not necessarily go to log-buying mills—they might go to timber-buying mills. Is that not so?" asked Mr. Davey.

"Yes," replied the witness.

Stating that he wished to get to the fundamentals of the problem, Mr. Davey asked Whyte if the export of logs was but one phase of the difficulty log-buying mills were experiencing in the log shortage, and if rapid depletion of timber resources and concentration of timber in the hands of a few large operators was not also contributing to the problem. Whyte said he was not prepared to answer the question.

"It must be recognized that the Export—Advisory Committee, comprising the chief forester of B.C., three representatives of log-buying operators and three of log-buying sawmills, who must approve exports of logs from timber licenses and leases, has no control over the export of logs from land crown granted prior to March 12, 1906," Mr. Whyte told the inquiry.

He recommended that the present wartime control over the export of logs from B.C., which was exercised by the federal government, be retained by that government during the progress of the war and after.

"When the natural resources of a region are limited and subject to depletion, the only source of increased income and employment is in the manufacture of those raw materials at their

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE (CP)—Communique No. 23:

Allied troops continue their advance with leading elements in St. Sauveur le Vicomte. Local advances were made in the face of heavy enemy opposition between Caumont and Tilly. East of Caen a strong enemy attack was beaten off.

Throughout yesterday Allied cruisers and destroyers engaged gun batteries which the enemy had established on the eastern bank of the river Orne.

Concentrations of enemy armor northeast of Caen were bombarded by H.M.S. Ramillies (Capt. G. H. Middleton).

point of origin," he said. "If the cut in British Columbia's forests has reached the limit of safety, must we not maximize the employment and income derived from the industry within that limit. This cannot be accomplished by the export of logs.

"Are we to attempt to satisfy the demand for permanent employment by the uncontrolled liquidation of our capital or are we to satisfy it by the addition of wealth through manufacturing?" Mr. Whyte asked in his brief, as he referred to the servicemen and women who would be returning to B.C. for jobs after the war, and of persons from other parts of Canada who came here for war work and in-

arrive at the beaches, steadily and in safety.

Adverse weather again restricted air operations yesterday afternoon and evening. Heavy bombers attacked enemy air field near Paris and Laon and objectives in Pas de Calais.

Railway targets, road transport and tanks behind the battle zone were attacked by fighters and fighter-bombers, and an ammunition dump near Caen by medium bombers.

Fighters also flew protective patrols and escorted bombers.

During the night our light bombers attacked supply dumps in the Cherbourg peninsula. Two enemy aircraft were shot down over Normandy.

tend to stay.

Policy of the provincial government which since 1891 called for the manufacture of forest products within the province and the prohibition, so far as possible, of the exportation of logs, was a sound one, he said, but was of little value until put into effect. In the postwar period, private enterprise must have opportunities for expansion, if anything like full employment is to be achieved, he said.

'Song and Fantasy' Aids Auxiliary

A clever dance revue, "Song and Fantasy" was presented by pupils of Wynne Shaw's Dancing Academy Friday evening at the Royal Victoria Theatre. The affair was sponsored by St. Joseph's Hospital Junior Auxiliary, and entire proceeds will aid the work of the auxiliary.

Lion-tamers, clowns, bareback riders and acrobats all took part in the circus which proved the outstanding scene of the show. A little tiger, let out of her cage by the ringmaster, a baby elephant, a monkey, tumbling teddy bears and ponies, contributed to the originality of the performance.

An old Dutch garden with tiny children dancing among tulips in front of a windmill opened the revue, and another well-costumed scene was "Blue Moonlight." Vocal solos were presented by Miss Catherine Craig, Miss Diana Bradley, Kenneth Hill and Arthur Stringer. A Prescott directed the orchestra.

Plans for a garden party to be held July 4 were made at a meeting of the Robert Burns McKicking Chapter, I.O.D.E., at headquarters. Miss Pearl Barber, regent, was in the chair. Plans for the garden party to be held at Government House were discussed. A sewing circle will be held at the home of Miss Barber, 39 Howe Street, June 21, when members will make articles for the handicraft stall at the garden party.

Weddings

CULLIN—WALKER

The marriage took place Friday evening in First United Church of Helen Ruth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Walker, 2324 Florence Street, and Gnr. Frederick Austin Cullin, R.C.A., son of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Cullin, 418 Heather Street. Rev. Hugh A. McLeod, D.D., read the service.

A wedding gown of white satin on classic lines, piped with self-material, with long sleeves pointed over the hands, was the choice of the bride, who was given away by her father. Her mother's floor-length veil of embroidered silk net was gathered to a half-hat, and she carried a shower bouquet of yellow roses, mauve sweet peas centred with a mauve orchid. Miss Phyllis Pritchard was the only attendant, wearing powder-blue lace over taffeta, with mittens and half-hat of the lace. Her sheaf bouquet was composed of pink carnations, sweet peas and pale blue delphiniums.

P.O. William Allen, R.C.N., was groomsmen, and ushering were Duncan Turner and Ernest Ball. H. J. Smith was the organist, and Miss Jean Dumerton sang "My Prayer" during the signing of the register.

Mothers of the bridal couple received many guests at a reception in Terry's Rose Room. Percy Walker, uncle of the bride, proposed the toast.

Gnr. and Mrs. Cullin left for a honeymoon to Banff, the bride wearing a mauve wool dressmaker suit, violet flowered hat, snakeskin accessories, wolf-trimmed beige topcoat and a corsage bouquet of orchids. They will return to reside on Florence Street.

JACKMAN—CLYDE

A wedding gown of two-toned ivory satin appliqued with lovers' knots was the choice of Hazel Angus, only daughter of Mrs. A. Clyde, 2845 Fifth Street, and the late Mr. Clyde, for her marriage Friday evening in First Baptist Church to Arthur Jackman, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Jackman, Isle of Wight.

F. O. Morris, an old friend of the family, gave the bride away, and her veil of Brussels net embroidered with pearls and crystal beads was arranged in halo effect. She carried a shower bouquet of pink roses and swainsona. Mrs. Alex Coles, cousin of the bride, was matron of honor, trocked in turquoise blue sheet of sweetpeas, carnations and stocks. Miss Joan Lawrence was bridesmaid in pink and carrying a bouquet of sweet peas, stocks and blue cornflowers. Mr. Morey supported the groom, and ushering were Wilfred Smith, David Stewart, Mr. Ship and Mr. Mair.

Rev. G. A. Reynolds performed the fully choral service, with "O Perfect Love" being sung. While the bride party was in the vestry, Ralph MacAdam sang "All Joy Be Thine."

A reception was held at the Y.W.C.A. where the guests were received by the bride's mother. Mr. Reynolds proposed the toast to the bride and solos were rendered by Pierre Timp, Mrs. Swetnam and Ralph MacAdam.

Going-away, the bride wore a navy blue dressmaker suit with white accessories. Mr. and Mrs. Jackman will reside in Victoria after a honeymoon on the mainland and up-Island.

STEWART—GORE-LANGTON

Margaret Coeline, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Gore-Langton, "Lyndhurst," Sinclair Road, Cadboro Bay, exchanged nuptial vows Friday evening in St. Luke's Church, Cedar Hill, with Flt. Sgt. Andrew William Stewart, R.C.A.F., second son of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Stewart, 511 Constance Avenue. Flt. Lt. Daniels, R.C.A.F., chaplain, performed the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white sheer, styled with a fitted bodice and a full skirt. A half circle of white heather and orange blossoms held the embroidered tulle veil. She carried a bouquet of Ophelia rosebuds, white sweet peas and blue delphiniums, and her only jewelry was a pearl pendant. Miss G. Gore-Langton was her sister's bridesmaid, wearing an afternoon frock of white jersey silk embroidered with red, and a white straw hat trimmed with veiling. Red and white carnations composed her bouquet. Flt. Sgt. P. Shepherd was groomsmen and ushering were Robert Stewart and Cpl. Harvey Currie.

Mr. Statham was at the organ and the congregation sang "O Perfect Love." While the bride party was in the vestry, R. Husband sang "Because."

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where they were assisted in receiving by the groom's mother, Mrs. A. W. Stewart, and Mrs. Nixon.

Flt. Sgt. and Mrs. Stewart will reside at Sidney, V.I., after a honeymoon at Qualicum Beach. The bride wore a going-away costume of powder blue suit, navy—and—white—accessories, camel hair coat and a corsage bouquet of gardenias and sweetheart roses.

OLIVER—FREECE

Canon H. V. Hitchcock performed the marriage ceremony Thursday evening in St. Michael's and All Angels' Church, Royal Oak, uniting Doris Jeanette, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Freece, 2874 Murray Drive, and Raymond John Oliver, only son of Councilor and Mrs. John Oliver, East Saanich Road. Mrs. A. G. Jackson played the wedding music.

The bride was given away by her father, and wore a gown of white sheer over satin, featuring a fitted bodice with a sweetheart neckline. Her full-length silk embroidered veil was held with a coronet of orange blossoms, and she carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses, white carnations and mauve sweet peas. Miss Ethel Oliver, sister of the groom, was maid of honor, wearing a gown of pale yellow sheer and matching shoulder veil. The bridesmaids, Miss Evelyn Burrow, in turquoise sheer, and Miss Gerry Frechette, in rose pink sheer, wore roses in their hair. All carried arm bouquets of calla lilies and gladioli.

Harold Slater, brother-in-law of the groom, was best man. Ushering were Orval Temple and Ray Lamont.

Parents of the couple received many guests at the reception in Royal Oak Community Hall. Councillor George Austin proposed the toast to the bride.

After a honeymoon on the mainland, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver will reside in their new home on East Saanich Road. The bride traveled in a navy and white two-piece frock with matching accessories and a camel hair topcoat.

BYERS—BIRKETT

The wedding took place Friday evening in Centennial United Church of Irene Mae, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Birkett, 915 Hillside Avenue, and Spr. Hilbert Harry Byers, R.C.E., son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Byers, Medicine Hat, Alta. Rev. John Turner officiated and Miss Elizabeth Angus was at the organ. Miss Maud Almond sang "I Love You Truly" during the signing of the register. The church was decorated by Miss Eleanor Brooke, a friend of the bride.

Given away by her father, the bride wore a beige dressmaker suit with chocolate brown accessories, and carried an arm bouquet of Talisman roses. Cpl. Sylvia Birkett, C.W.A.C., of Vancouver, was maid of honor, wearing her uniform with a corsage bouquet of deep pink carnations. Miss Betty Almond, the other bridesmaid, chose a pale blue dressmaker suit with white and brown accessories and a corsage bouquet of pale pink carnations. Spr. M. Brookes, R.C.E., supported the groom, and ushers were Robert Birkett, brother of the bride, and Spr. D. Wallace, R.C.E.

A reception was held in the Liberal Hall, where Mrs. Birkett, mother of the bride, was assisted in receiving the guests by the bride's godmother, Mrs. T. Parke. Rev. Turner proposed the toast. Spr. and Mrs. Byers left for a honeymoon on the mainland, the bride wearing a pale blue crepe frock, blue gabardine coat, a gift of the groom, brown accessories and a shoulder spray of Talisman roses. They will return to live at 2648 Wark Street.

KNIGHTS TILTED TO WIN FAVOR OF FAIR DAMSELS

For hundreds of years in Europe there were great numbers of knights who kept wandering from place to place. They seemed to know nothing better to do than to "search for adventure." People called them knights-errant, meaning wandering knights.

Such knights usually would set out alone, or with a single squire. They would ride along narrow roads, some of which were little more than paths.

In rainy weather, the knights galloped across many mud puddles in the dirt roads of those times. In fair weather, we can be sure that they had a rather pleasant time. Like the friars, who usually wandered on foot, the knights-errant could see many charming sights—tree-covered hills, streams and rivers winding through valleys, high castles and tiny villages.

Perhaps best of all, they could be sure of food and lodging at almost any castle they chose to enter. It was a law, not written, but real, that a wandering knight should be cared for by other knights.

LORDS LIKED TO TILT

Sometimes, however, the lord of a castle would ask a price from any knight who came to enjoy the shelter of his roof and the good things of his table. The price was a "joust" or "tilt." In those days people had no baseball or football games to keep them excited. Life in the castles often grew dull. So when a lord saw a knight enter his yard, he was likely to say:

"Sir, let us match our strength with lances!" Then he would mount a horse and level his lance for the mock fight. The two would charge together with great force, but seldom with injury. Usually the only hurts were bruises, when one or the other was knocked from his saddle.

Sometimes a knight would take a station besides a road, or near a bridge. He would challenge every knight who came along to do combat. It was a custom in some parts for the knight who lost to give the other his shield. A strong and skillful fighter would get quite a collection of shields, as many as his squire could carry.

WANTED FAVOR OF DAMSELS

Besides adventure, there was another reason for tilting. The knight knew that fair dames and damsels liked men who performed "deeds of daring." Hoping they would admire him, he went out to fight with all who came his way. On returning home, he would tell about the great things he had done.

From time to time, tournaments were held. There were meetings of knights from many places. They came together and held mock battles. One group of knights would charge against another group. Then there would be a lively contest to see which side could knock more of "the enemy" off their steeds.

Tournaments were held most often in a field near the castle of a noble. Ladies wearing their best hats and dresses would watch the knights.

Single combats also took place at tournaments. The knight who won the most combats was given great honor. A crown might be placed on his head by the noble's prettiest daughter.

Clubwomen

Miss Louise Putnam was welcomed as a guest at a meeting of the Pas-a-pas held at the home of Miss May Warnock, Denison Road. Mrs. Neil Grant presided. A prayer was given by Mrs. A. S. Christie in honor of those taking part in the invasion. Devotions were taken by Mrs. L. Woods, and reports of the various officers were given. The group was asked to take charge of the fireside hour in the church August 20. A letter was read from Mrs. McAllister containing

ALLAN-CARTER

St. Matthew's Anglican Church, Winnipeg, was the scene of the wedding, June 10, when Joyce, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin C. Carter, 726 Lipton Street, Winnipeg, became the bride of William Miller Allan, elder son of Rev. and Mrs. William Allan, 220 Moss Street. Canon G. R. Calvert officiated.

The bride wore a gown of white spider web lace over satin, the low waistline was outlined with a tiny frill, as were the sweetheart neckline and the lily point sleeves. A scalloped headress of net held her veil and she carried a bouquet of Johanna Hill roses.

A reception was held at the Fort Garry Hotel, after which Mr. and Mrs. Allan left for Victoria where they are visiting prior to returning to Winnipeg where the groom is employed with Defence Industries munition plant. For traveling, the bride wore a beige dressmaker suit, the jacket trimmed with tulle and work, and a hat of fuselia straw with flower trim.

Dorothy Dix

RUINS GOOD HOME

Dear Dorothy Dix—I am 24 years old. Have been married five years and have three children. My husband is very good to me, but I am in love with a man who has obtained a divorce from his wife because he is in love with me, and he demands that I divorce my husband so I can marry him. He is in the army and in his letters he says that if I don't tell him about us that he will tell him when he comes on his furlough. I have been going with this man for three years without my husband knowing about it.

Would you advise me to stay with my husband for the children's sake, or to divorce him and marry the man I love?

UNDECIDED.

Answer—What a mess of your own life and of other people's lives to have made in so short a time! To be only 24 years old and to have been married and had three children, and broken up another woman's home and taken her husband from her, and to have been unfaithful to your own good husband, certainly constitutes a record. You must be what the story-writers call a "femme fatale."

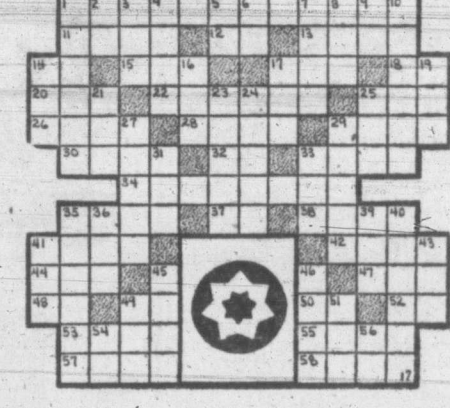

As for whether you shall divorce your husband, it seems to me that it is up to him. Probably he will not be anxious to keep a wife he can trust so little and who loves another man.

Red Cross Parcels For War Prisoners

Records in the B.C. Division of the Red Cross at the end of May show 235 prisoners of war held in European camps. Of this number 96 have next-of-kin in Vancouver; 32 in Victoria and 107 in other parts of the province. Weekly Red Cross parcels bring them sufficient food to keep them in good health, and their mental requirements will be satisfied by the reading matter, textbooks and even correspondence courses which are provided through the Red Cross.

National Council Ends Annual Meet

PORT ARTHUR (CP)—Delegates to the National Council of Women's annual convention headed for home today after a five-day meet held here this week. Addresses by women prominent throughout the Dominion highlighted the gathering at which numerous resolutions were passed. Final sessions of the council dealt mainly with the relationship between rural and urban women. Mrs. Norman C. Stephens of Toronto told delegates that better shopping facilities, higher standards of education and finer roads were needed to make rural life more inviting.

The part of Canadian farm women in the war effort was outlined by Miss Frances McKay of Winnipeg. She, too, stressed the need for electrification, improved water supplies and better communications and housing in rural areas.

Earlier, the relaxing of restrictions on the manufacture of beer was deplored in a resolution. Other resolutions passed urged: Dominion, provincial and municipal government enter an agreement whereby housing would be provided for persons in lower income brackets.

There is an addition of a qualified woman to the Wartime Labor Relations Board, in addition to the board already set up.

Medical and psychiatric tests be made in cases of criminal assault on women and children.

The convention reaffirmed its belief in the freedom of every woman to choose where and at what she will work, and deprecated the tendency to discriminate against employment of married women.

Invasion Casualties Visited by Queen

AT A CANADIAN HOSPITAL IN SOUTHERN ENGLAND (CP)—Canadian wounded brought back from French battlefields to this hospital near an English village found the Queen a sympathetic listener to the story of each one. For nearly three hours the Queen clicked through the wards and corridors with a smile and kindly words for each patient, mostly men of a Canadian assault formation.

With her, as gay, witty and mischievous as tradition makes her, was Lady Astor, who treats all men in hospital as lovable, slightly naughty small boys. She pauses beside a bed to rumple one boy's hair, mimes about in imitation of someone, makes another smile in spite of his casts.

Maj. Gen. R. M. Luton, Halifax, received the Queen with Vincent Massey, Canadian High Commissioner in London. She also met Col. C. A. Watson of Victoria, B.C., medical officer of the hospital, and members of the staff, including Matron Helen Wilson of Winnipeg and Lt. Col. C. W. Clark, Winnipeg.

Robot Planes Strike Nurses' Home Wreck Store; R.A.F. Bombs Bases

By JAMES F. KING

LONDON (AP) — Germany's new explosive robot planes, dispatched across the English Channel in weather that sharply reduced Allied air activity, struck blindly in parts of southern England in intermittent attacks through Friday night and the morning hours today.

Several persons were killed and a number injured when one of the fire-spitting projectiles made a direct hit on a nurses' home at a hospital. Rescuers said they thought a number of persons were buried.

Another wrecked a shop, trapping four people for six hours in the cellar. Firemen had to fight flames before rescue squads could start digging, and when the four were released water in the cellar almost reached their necks.

FOUND CALAIS COAST

During the night British planes, following in the path of U.S. heavy bombers late Friday, struck the Pas de Calais coast—the region from which the robots are believed launched. The bombers poured their loads on the targets even as the Germans were sending over scores of the small unmanned craft.

Fast German night fighter-bombers also rumbled through the English skies, ducking in and out of the clouds and dropping flares in apparent attempt to confuse British defences, but rockets from ack-ack batteries plunged steadily upward, and a number of the pilotless craft were reported crashed.

Putting caution before curiosity, people of southern England flocked into bomb shelters, most of which were jammed throughout the night.

R.A.F. Spitfire pilots, with the same daring that brought them fame in the 1940-41 Battle of Britain, were diving through terrific fire from their own ack-ack guns in bids to destroy these new German buzz-bombs.

$1,250,000 School Plan Here To Meet Postwar Student Rush

Plans completed by the Victoria School Board for $1,250,000 of new school buildings here, include a new college building to handle the postwar rush of ex-soldier and war worker students and developing Victoria High School into a "composite high," with the addition of technical shops to existing facilities, it was announced today.

The new Victoria College cost is estimated at $325,000. The composite High School development will involve an estimated cost of $175,000 for a series of technical training shops which would extend along the side of the present rugby field.

COMPOSITE SCHOOL MORE ECONOMICAL

Proposals for a straight technical school in Victoria have been discarded by the school board, it was learned, as latest educational developments favor the composite high school, especially for a city the size of Victoria, as more economical and affording pupils wider range of opportunities.

Recommendation that federal aid be given for the development of the technical end of the Victoria composite high school was on its way to Ottawa today from H. L. Smith's Federal Employment Advisory Committee. Included is the proposal for federal aid for an extension of Victoria College, also as a rehabilitation measure to meet increased post-war demands.

RUSH OF STUDENTS FORESEEN

"University of B.C. expects 4,000 students after the war and there is every reason to expect the same proportionate increase at Victoria College," said Harold L. Campbell, municipal inspector of schools. "Soldiers returning from overseas will want to get or complete their education and the government is going to help them to do it."

Mr. Campbell said that seven or eight times as many pupils per thousand of population had to be cared for by the High School compared with 30 years ago. He said the High School was now everyman's school.

ANTQUATED BUILDINGS

Chairman Austin Curtis of the school board said that the present Victoria College building as a converted home was unsatisfactory.

"As for our whole public school system in Victoria, the teaching is very efficient, but our buildings are very old," said Chairman Curtis. "For 19 city schools we now have 49 buildings, owing to the shortsighted policy in the past of building frame structures around the old school buildings. They are terribly expensive to operate in the way of maintenance. Our schools, too, are not centrally located with respect to districts they serve."

DETAILS OF PROGRAM

Victoria city's school construction program as approved by the board follows.

1. Central Junior High, taking in the present east buildings, for a 25-classroom school, with gymnasium, auditorium, cafeteria, shops and labs, $275,000.

2. Victoria High, five additional technical shops at $35,000 each, $175,000.

3. North Junior High, a 22-classroom school with auditorium, cafeteria, shops and labs, $330,000.

4. Victoria Junior College, in place of the present converted castle residence, $325,000.

5. James Bay to replace the present South Park and Kingston Street Schools, $70,000.

6. Demolition and additions to existing schools, $75,000.

Total cost, $1,250,000.

1 More Liberal In Saskatchewan

SASKATOON (CP)—Election of L. M. Marlon, Liberal candidate in the far north Saskatchewan constituency of Athabasca, was reported today to have been conceded. Final figures in the five-way contest were not immediately available.

The concession gave the Liberals five seats in the 52-seat House, on the basis of the civilian vote. Results of the service vote, expected to be available Monday, may make some changes. The C.C.F. took 43 seats in Thursday's polling, and three are undecided. The polling in the other northern constituency, Cumberland, has been deferred until June 24.

The latest available figures for Athabasca, with three of the 18 polls reported, gave Marlon (L.), 259; Erickson (Ind.), 68; Ayotte (C.C.F.), 26; Delaronde (P.C.), 6; and Poltras (Ind.-Lib.), 1.

Shipyards Strike In Vancouver Again

VANCOUVER (CP)—Protesting discharge of two shop stewards, some workers at the Burrard Drydock Company's north yard began a strike today, Vancouver's second shipyard strike this week.

Officials of the Shipwrights', Joiners' and Caulkers' Industrial Union (C.C.L.) who called the strike said 80 per cent of the yard's 4,000 employees had stopped work. Company officials said workers affiliated with the A.F.L. did not stop work.

Germans Facing New Sevastopol On Peninsula

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE (CP)—British tank and infantry formations north of Caumont in the region of the deepest Allied penetration in the 100-mile-wide Normandy bridgehead, took some "limited objectives" and forces of the British 6th Air-Borne Division scored another advance north of Troarn, on the eastern flank of the bridgehead, Allied headquarters announced late today.

U.S. troops in hard fighting in the Cherbourg peninsula punched ahead two to three miles in the developing thrust to bottle up enemy forces in and around Cherbourg. U.S. forces northwest of St. Sauveur le Vi-comte—whose fall cut Cherbourg's last railway route—advanced to positions astride the Douve River, which bends westward north of St. Sauveur.

The army of French Forces of the Interior has undertaken a large-scale plan of sabotage in France since the Normandy invasion was launched 11 days ago, said a special communique from Gen. Eisenhower's headquarters. Their activities include blowing up bridges and wrecking other Nazi means of communication. Trains have been derailed, at least 70 locomotives sabotaged, and all road and rail traffic has been stopped in the Rhone valley, the bulletin said.

In direct fighting operations, French patriots have taken 300 German prisoners, attacked garisons, fought their way through streets and in some places have

Earlier today Allied headquarters had said the British 6th Airborne Division, with which Canadian paratroopers are operating, had thrown back strong German attacks in the bridgehead east of the Orne River. A front dispatch said the British forces in their subsequent attack swept the Germans back several miles and seized a village.

Japs Repeat Claim Raid Missed Mark

NEW YORK (AP)—The Japanese Domei agency, in an English language broadcast, declared today that the Yawata Steel mill, blasted by B-29 Super-Fortresses Thursday night, remain "undamaged, notwithstanding enemy claims to the contrary," and asserted the U.S. fliers were misled by fire of "burning wheat stalks" near a farmhouse.

Reports of the bombing by U.S. correspondents said towering pillars of flames visible for 60 miles were left by the giant raiders, and it was estimated that a fifth of Japan's steel production at Yawata may have been knocked out.

By PETE SALLAWAY

THERE MUST BE some kind of thrill to watching a ball game through a knot hole. During the last two years I have taken particular note of a couple of chaps who are regular patrons at the park having their good eye glued to a certain peep hole every time the baseballers are in action. Feeling a bit sorry for one fellow, I made an offer to purchase him a seat in the grandstand, and much to my surprise he turned down the good will offer with a glare that bespoke anything but appreciation.

IMMEDIATELY my curiosity was aroused and I was determined to learn the reason for such fondness for his hole in the fence. I have watched every ball game through this particular circle the last two years and you have no idea of the sense of independence it gives me," he said. "There is no chance of somebody standing in front of you and one does not have to stand in line to buy a ticket. Last season some hard-hearted person got the idea to cover over all the holes but we knot-hole boys soon overcame that difficulty and since then they have left us alone. I'll take my knot hole in preference to a spot in the grandstand anytime. So thanks just the same for offering to get me a seat." With those remarks he turned again to his peep hole to watch the ball clubs warming up and I continued on to the park determined never again to attempt a good deed for the boys of the knot-hole club.

MEMORIES of a historic lacrosse battle of 50 years ago were revived today when H. E. A. Courtney appeared in the office with a picture of two teams that played on the old Caledonia Grounds, June 30, 1894. They represented the lawyers and commission merchants of Victoria. The lawyers scored a victory and the commission merchants of Victoria. The lawyers scored a victory and the commission merchants of Victoria. The lawyers scored a victory and the commission merchants of Victoria.

PLAYING for the lawyers were: Judge F. B. Gregory, Judge P. S. Lapham, Judge S. D. Schultz, Judge H. E. A. Robertson, Perry Mills, K.C., A. L. Belyea, K.C., and H. E. A. Courtney. Of that last Courtney is only living member. On the line-up for the merchants were some prominent men as J. H. B. Rickaby, Percy Wollaston, H. C. Macaulay, C. A. Godson, H. J. Scott, H. G. Wilson, T. H. Allie, C. F. Gardiner and S. P. Moody. Trainer for the teams was the well-known Bob Foster.

NOTICE where my old friend Al Hardy has again been named presiding steward for the forthcoming race meeting at the Longacres track in Washington. I first made Hardy's acquaintance at the old Colwood track when he was calling the form chart for the local races. Since that time Al has become one of the leading racing authorities in the Pacific Northwest and for the last five years has done a fine job of bossing the race meets at the Washington mile strip.

GATHERED from here and there: New York Giants have had 36 third basemen since Freddie Lindstrom... Joe Cronin finds first basing easiest of all, says he wishes he had transferred there when he was finished at shortstop... Leo Diegel considers controlling his nerves the highly-keyed Bobby Jones' greatest achievement in golf... While practically all of Johnny Weissmuller's records have been broken the screen star is still rated the daddy of all speed swimmers.

R.C.A.F. Win Slugfest

Turn Back Eagles 14-10

Lashing out two towering home runs, three triples and five doubles, R.C.A.F. Flyers won Friday night's ball game with the Eagles the hard way. Down 8 to 1 after two and a half innings, the Flyers went on a batting rampage that won them the eight-inning contest, 14 to 10.

Home runs were contributed by giant Pop Pay, first baseman, and Justice, smart, shortstop of the airmen. Each round-tripper came with a runner on the sacks. Justice was the real big hitting threat with three for five and his blows knocked in six of the Flyers' runs.

Billy Surphis, old work-horse of the Flyers, opened on the mound, but gave up the ghost after four innings, being picked for nine runs, 10 hits and three bases on balls. He was replaced by southpaw Bert Appleby, making his first appearance of the season. The wrongsided was nicked for one run and four hits and looked good out on the hill.

Young Bobby Prior was the Eagles' choice for pitching duties and lasted until the fourth, when he was chased to the showers after Pay's home run and Buckley's towering double against the right centre field fence. Prior was touched for six runs, six hits and walked a pair. Ray Maitland took over and he received rough treatment from the R.C.A.F.

It marked the fourth victory for the Flyers in their last five starts, the other game resulting in a tie. The airmen are now safely entrenched in third position in the league with four wins against three defeats.

Short score follows:

R. H. E.
Eagles 10 13 1
R.C.A.F. 14 15 2
Batteries—Prior, Maitland and Garnett; Surphis, Appleby and Switch.

Photographs taken of the finish showed Magpie a nose in front of Zaccabum, who was half a length ahead of Maracay. The winner paid $13.90 for a $2 win ticket.

Patty Berg Tries Another Comeback In Western Open

CHICAGO (AP)—Marine Lieut. Patty Berg was trying to recapture her golden swing in practice rounds at the Park Ridge Golf Course before facing some of the strongest competition in her career in defence of her women's western open title next week.

Out of action since late in 1941 when she was severely injured in an auto accident, freckle-faced Patty reappeared on the golf scene last year to win the western open as well as the inaugural Tam O'Shanter women's tournament.

But since she joined the marines last fall, her golf has been limited to a few exhibition features and now she has to make a comeback all over again. She wishes to successfully defend her championship—the war-time's No. 1 crown—from a field of nearly prewar calibre.

Among her outstanding opponents will be "Babe" Didrikzen Zaharias, Dot Germaine of Philadelphia, Catherine Fox of Glen Ridge, N.J.; Dot Kirby of Atlanta, Ga.; Texan Polly Riley of Fort Worth, and Mrs. M. B. Killian of San Antonio; Marjorie Row of Anniston, Ala.; Margaret Gunther of Memphis, Tenn., and Phyllis Otto of Atlantic, Ia.

Some 120 women are expected to tee off Monday in an 18-hole qualifying round to determine 32 places in the match play championship bracket.

Nelson, Turnesa Share Golf Lead

NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y. (AP)—The $13,333 Red Cross golf tournament at Wykagyl course turned into a free-for-all Friday as the field of 110 hit the half-way mark with a half-dozen players under par in the medal play for two fours.

Out front, as expected, was Byron Nelson, former P.G.A. and national open champion from Toledo, O., who turned in his second straight 69—three under par—for a 138 total. Mike Turnesa of White Plains, N.Y., was deadlocked with Nelson at a 137 on his second round. Next, with 139 after a brilliant 68 yesterday, was Harold (Jug) McSpaden of Philadelphia, who entered the play as co-favorite with Nelson.

Vic Ghezzi, army sergeant from Deal, N.J., who paced the first round with a 67, skidded to 73 and took over fourth place with 140. Craig Wood, duration national open king from Mamaronck, N.Y., who soared to 77 Thursday, blew in with a 69 to hit the halfway mark at 146, only two over par.

The big second-round comeback, however, was staged by amateur Don Morano of Belleville, N.J., who matched Turnesa's 67 after using up 79 strokes Thursday.

DECISION FOR NOVA

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—Lou Nova of California, 204, won a decision over Bill Peters of Chicago, 198, in a hard-fought 10-round bout here Friday night. Promoter Jack Laklin said the bout, which was staged before 6,000 fans, was for the "duration heavyweight championship."

Look But Don't Touch When You See Fawns

Two baby deer at Elk Lake Game Farm indicate high mortality rates among those handled by well-meaning people. Two weeks ago there were seven at the farm. Five died from improper feeding prior to being placed in game warden's hands. All would have had good chances of survival had they been left alone.

By ART STOTT

If the public generally will apply the Little Bo-Peep advice about lost sheep to the apparently abandoned fawns they see on highways these days, they will give the baby deer a 100 per cent better chance of survival, game wardens of the lower island said today.

If they leave them alone, the fawns will go home, packing what little they have in the way of tails behind them. But, if they are picked up through misguided kindness and taken to the city, their chances of survival will be negligible. In the last two weeks, seven fawns have been brought into the Elk Lake game farm. Today there are only two alive. The others have died from the treatment they received prior to entry into the farm.

"Give Bambi a break," pleaded the game wardens here. Left to their mothers, the youngsters have an excellent chance of living to maturity. Taken from their natural surroundings, their chances are next to nil.

It is contrary to the law to take the animals in the first place, and they cannot be harbored legally by those who capture them. People violating those regulations are liable to prosecution.

"If anyone sees a deer, young or old, which appears in need of help, all he needs to do is call the nearest police officer or game warden and identify the locality in which the animal was seen. Our department will look after the animal and release it to its mother. They're easier marks for those who prey on their species. And it's pretty hard for them to learn from experience. The first experience is frequently fatal."

"The game farm animals do not develop the shyness from natural enemies that those taught by their parents and Mother Nature do," Mr. Cash explained. "They're easier marks for those who prey on their species. And it's pretty hard for them to learn from experience. The first experience is frequently fatal."

Once human hands have been placed on her offspring, the mother deer loses interest in the fawn.

Gyro Club Stages Hole-in-One Golf; $5,000 Objective

With an objective of $5,000 and the entire proceeds to be turned over to the Solarium for crippled children, the Gyro Club will stage its fifth annual hole-in-one golf competition and carnival, on the grounds of the Central Junior High School, July 5 to 8.

In addition to the golf competition there will be all kinds of games of chance such as bingo and crown and anchor and outdoor dancing. A daily tombola will be drawn and there will be a daily prize for the golfing event. The main tombola prize to be drawn July 8 will be $200 in Victory bonds.

A professional green will be constructed for the hole-in-one event which will have a grand prize of a $50 Victory bond to be shot for the final day.

The carnival will open every evening at 7 and continue throughout until darkness.

Last year the Gyro Club raised over $3,000 for the Solarium through the carnival and the members feel quite confident they will reach the $5,000 mark this year.

Outsider Ocean Swell Wins English Derby

NEWMARKET, Eng. (CP)—Ocean Swell, a lowly-regarded outsider owned by Lord Rosebery, won England's fifth wartime Derby today at odds of 28 to 1 in an exciting finish with Tehran and Happy Landing, who finished second and third.

The Aga Khan's Tehran started at 8 to 1 and Happy Landing at 22 to 1. Maj. David Will's favorite, Growing Confidence, which was started at 9 to 2, ran out of the money.

Ocean Swell, a bay colt by Blue Peter out of Jiffy, with W. Nevett up, took the lead less than a half mile from home in Britain's top classic for three-year-olds, and stood off Tehran's blazing finish to win by a neck.

Happy Landing was also closing fast at the finish, showing by a head. Time was 2:31.

Garden Path—winner of the 2,000 Guineas and the only filly in the field of 20—was pre-race favorite, being quoted as low as 66 to 1 in call-overs this week, but failed in the stretch and finished 10th, just in front of Growing Confidence.

THRILLING RACE

Tehran with E. Smith aboard and Happy Landing ridden by R. A. Jones, were lying fifth and sixth behind Rameses, Orestes and Garden Path when Ocean Swell moved into the lead, but they swirled past tiring horses in the stretch to stage a finishing drive to catch the winner that brought a rolling roar of excitement from the crowd of more than 10,000.

Victory in this fifth wartime Derby—the race normally is run at Epsom Downs—brought Lord Rosebery a purse of about $23,600.

Tehran paid 2 to 1 to place and Happy Landing returned a little better than 5 to 1 to show.

Boston Red Sox Stopped

Yankees Finally Win

Boston's nine-game winning streak which had lifted the Red Sox from sixth place to within a half-game of the American League lead, was halted abruptly by Milt Canfield, Washington's in-and-out right-hander, last night.

Canfield blanked the Sox 4 to 0 with five hits in pitching his first complete game of the season.

The league-leading St. Louis Browns scored a decisive 14 to 1 victory over Detroit Tigers, Milt Byrnes and Mark Christman each drove in three runs. Bob Muncie won his sixth victory, scattering nine Bengal hits.

The New York Yankees started a long home stand with a victory over the tail-end Philadelphia Athletics 6 to 1. A five-run sixth inning enabled Hank Borowy to hang up his eighth win of the year.

Fireman Gordon Maltzberger, rescued Orval Grove in the ninth when he fanned manager Lou Boudreau with the bases full and two out, to give Chicago Sox a 5 to 1 win over the Cleveland Indians.

Brooklyn took a close one with Philadelphia Phillies 5 to 4, with the aid of four-run outburst in the sixth inning.

Cincinnati Reds clubbed four Chicago pitchers for 13 hits, including homers by Frank McCormick and Eric Tipton to defeat the Cubs 10 to 5.

COAST LEAGUE

Young Chester Johnson celebrated the birth of his second son and revenge of a humiliation of three years standing last night when he shut out the San Francisco Seals 6 to 0 on two hits.

The San Diego Padre pitcher received word from Seattle of the birth of his second boy just before taking the mound against the team that cast him adrift three years ago.

The defeat dropped the Pacific Coast Baseball League leaders to only a half game ahead of idle Portland.

Hollywood lengthened its hold on third place in league standings with a ninth inning rally in which three runs were scored to beat Sacramento 4 to 3.

Los Angeles at Seattle and Oakland at Portland were rained out.

SCORES HOLE-IN-ONE

Col. R. L. Fortt dropped his tee shot on the 183-yard 14th hole yesterday afternoon for a hole-in-one while playing in a friendly foursome with Stan Stratton and Paul Glaser of Seattle, and Phil Taylor, at the Victoria Golf Club.

Extra Seven Days Racing at Calgary

WINNIPEG (CP)—R. J. Speers, honorary secretary of the Prairie Thoroughbred Breeders and Racing Association, announced here Friday an extra seven days of racing had been booked in Calgary from Aug. 19 to 25.

He said that with a 10-day meet scheduled at Edmonton, starting Aug. 5, the complete schedule for racing on the prairies this year would be 72 days.

Postpone Race Meet

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—The Del Mar Turf Club directors voted Friday to postpone temporarily the opening of the race meeting scheduled to start July 1. Directors said delay in reconsecrating the track and other unavoidable circumstances necessitated the action.

San Diego aircraft firms, civic organizations and United States federal war agencies had announced opposition to the meeting, contending racing might tend to increase absenteeism.

Bing Crosby is president of the turf club.

FIRST TUB BATH IN A YEAR

WITH THE CANADIAN 'SEAFORTHS' IN ITALY — For a mere 20 lire I enjoyed the sweetest, most pleasurable treat I've had in almost a year—a tub bath in a real, legitimate bathtub. . . The folks back home who have got their tubs right handy in the home, can't imagine (unless they are veterans who have sampled battle conditions) how delightful an occasion this was for yours truly. . . England was the last place where I had had a tub-bath. That was 10 months ago. . .

Since Blighly, it's been a shower mostly supplied chiefly by mobile bath units (five minutes per men), or doing a difficult job squatting in a half-barrel (we even once used a large biscuit tin); and then again the more difficult action periods when we did not get a bath of any kind for a month or more, and sometimes it meant going without a wash for many days. . .

For a week I tried to get into the bath booths at the rear of an Eytie-barber shop in town. Each time there was such a long waiting list I had to give it up. There was six tubs and two showers in the place, and half the Canucks soldiery in the town with their sights trained on a tub.

SUCCESS AT LAST

Today, however, I succeeded. Hot water was rationed. I was allowed one-third of a tub of the steaming stuff. How I loved the feel of the water on my hair! (a shower simply is not in the running with a tub). I soaked and scrubbed for half an hour, accompanied by good old bath-room vocal efforts, and then had to vacate the precious tub because the proprietor was beating his gums steady at me for taking such a long time. As there was a waiting list. . . I polished off with a cold shower, and left the place feeling the cleanest I've felt in many a moon. . . We are not the only ones who miss the tub. I remember some reporter asking one of our brass hats during an action period what his pet ambition was. The general wanted more than anything to have a hot tub bath.

ARMY NEWSPAPERS

In this part of the world we rely almost entirely upon our army newspapers to keep us abreast of world happenings and the progress on the battlefronts.

Paul Used Soldier As Example Of Endurance for Christians

Text: II Timothy 2: 14, 8-12; 4: 5-8

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D.D.

PAUL was not a defender of the institution of slavery when he offered some whole-some Christian counsel to a master of a runaway slave, he was not an apologist for war when he used the terms of warfare and soldiering to define the nature of the Christian life; and to exhort his fellow-Christians to live it manfully and well.

The fact is that the life of the Christian parallels that of the soldier in many ways, there are some essential differences between the service of the earthly soldier and the service of Christ. Endurance is the great, ultimate mark of the true and effective soldier. The long process of training is to make him hard and strong and firm of muscle and spirit, as well as efficient. That is amply proved in the present war in which the daily records tell of acts of amazing valor and achievement on the part of men and women who but yesterday were quietly engaged in ordinary occupations.

PAUL exhorts Timothy, whom he loves as if he were his own son, to "endure hardness" as a good soldier of Jesus Christ. It was the word of an old and experienced veteran to one yet immature in the service. Paul knew from experience that a Christian could not live in the hostile environment of that ancient world. . . Prime Minister Churchill declared "Battle of Britain" had begun. Canada moved to mobilize manpower and resources; all men up to 45 liable for home service.

and outstanding things on the Home Front, especially matters relating to and affecting us of the services, such as rehabilitation, which is keenly followed by all. . . On the whole we are now being kept well informed.

In Italy we have four army newspapers dishing up the daily news to us. These are: The Canadians' Own, The Maple Leaf, the Yanks' Stars and Stripes, the British papers. The Eighth Army News and Union Jack. . . They are dailies (four pages, week-end editions larger) of tabloid-size. All are nicely "made-up" and well printed. Besides daily news of a wide variety, these papers contain articles by "big names" in the news world, contributions by cartoonists whose true-to-front-line efforts never fail to draw a chuckle from the boys, comic strips, "pin-up girls" displaying a neat leg and oomph curves, excellent editorials and popular writings by staff columnists.

CARTOONS AND NEWS

The Maple Leaf's cartoonist is a fellow who answers to the name of Coghlin. Today's edition shows a night scene, in which a couple of screwball "Red Patch" characters are sitting on the ground in a typical front-line setting; one is firing a flare pistol and the other has a newspaper in his hands. Says the one with the paper: "Fire one more. I've got another paragraph to read." There's a good column entitled: "Shell Bursts," by H.A.H. It's good. . . A priceless character of H.A.H.'s is Front-line Charlie. He quotes remarks from F. L. Charlie every day. Says Charlie today: "Getting tired of this behind-the-lines life. Too monotonous. Think I'll join up with a combat unit. Yep, I'm going to try and get into the Anti-Malaria Combat Unit."

We even got the news of the burning of Victoria's arena in the Maple Leaf. We were sure about that. . . Although there is an invitation to write letters to the editor of the Maple Leaf, not many Canucks do. . . However, there is plenty of airing of opinions by the soldiery in the Yank and English papers.

LETTER-GROUSING AND POEMS

The English papers tell their readers they can "yell your heads off" in the letter column. And the Limeys go "all out." If they don't like something somebody says in Parliament they don't mind words with the pen. If they object to "pin-up" girls they verbally bombshell their army paper (quote a number do object—the epistol sports). If the two English dailies figure somebody is doing "the dirty" to the boys out here they blast so strong and loud it reaches the House of Commons' attention—and action.

Poetry has become very popular with soldiers. There is some particularly good stuff in the Stars and Stripes. G.I.'s express in poetic lines their woes, their love life, their hopes and experiences. . . A big favorite with the Canucks is Canadian Press News for overseas troops. It's a lively, newsy and covers all of Canada.

Came Rebekah Lodge No. 45 met in the I.O.O.F. Hall, Douglas Street, with Sister Elsie Mowatt presiding. A memorial service was held in honor of the departed members. Installation of officers will take place at the next meeting, July 6.

Initiation of a new member took place at a meeting of the Canadian Daughters' League Assembly No. 5 in the Shrine Hall. President, Mrs. H. S. Hewitt, was in the chair. Local Council of Women's activities were reviewed by the convener, Mrs. A. C. Ross, who also reported on the Women's Voluntary Service or organization, requesting all members possible to register. Three members contributed. . . to the C.D.L. birthday box, and a group of members volunteered to tag June 24 for the benefit of Sevastopol, the adopted city. Arrangements were made for members to meet and work on bazaar items at the different homes during the summer. Supper was convened by Mrs. C. Kinney and Mrs. R. H. McInnes. The next meeting will be held the first Thursday in September.

Youths Hear Briefs On Postwar Problems

Briefs on problems facing Canadian youth were presented during a two-hour meeting of the Canadian Youth Commission under the chairmanship of Herbert Rowland, president, Friday night at the Y.M.C.A.

James McAree of the educational committee, urged revision of facilities, new methods of instruction, free textbooks and emphasis on discovering talents and abilities of students prior to concentrated study.

In a brief on employment, B. Mezgar said too many workers were doing jobs for which they were not properly fitted. He urged aptitude tests be taken by all students at school.

Rene Davis, reporting on recreation, suggested additional facilities be established in Victoria and recreational programs be made available for all citizens.

Pam Mitchell, in the international affairs brief, analyzed the failure of the last war peace, the causes and effects of the present war and a program for building the peace after the war.

Four other briefs are being prepared for presentation to the national headquarters of the youth commission. They are as follows: Family living, by Miss Marion Foster; religion, by Miss Jarvis-Read; physical and mental health, by Tiek McCoy, and citizenship, by Harry Olden.

Reeve Hadfield Prize For Lampson Scholar

Reeve Thomas Hadfield of Esquimalt announced today that he would donate a prize annually to the scholar of Lampson Street School, who through the years up to and including entrance, is adjudged the best all-round student.

The award to be known as the "Reeve Prize" will be presented personally by the reeve at the school closing ceremony, and may be a gold watch in the event of a boy winning the award, and something suitable, yet to be decided upon, should a girl win.

The student will be adjudged on character, co-operation and leadership, scholarship and sportsmanship. Sportsmanship will not necessarily mean excelling in athletic endeavors.

Reeve Hadfield has expressed the hope that succeeding reeves of Esquimalt would make the award an annual event.

2,000 Applaud Victoria's Snow White

By KAY MCINTYRE

Thirteen-year-old Donna McCabe, Victoria's Princess Snow White made her first appearance on a Vancouver stage Friday night and heard an audience of more than 2,000 in the Orpheum Theatre loudly applaud her song.

She was there for the finals in the search for British Columbia's Snow White. Wearing her first formal, a pink taffeta frock with wide skirt banded in blue ribbon and the crown she received in Victoria's Capitol Theatre a week ago, Donna sang "Heigh-ho" from the film "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs." She was accompanied by Dal Richards and his Hotel Vancouver orchestra.

"This little girl from Victoria," said Ivan Ackery, manager of the Orpheum, in introducing her, "is making her first appearance in Vancouver. We want to Vancouver audience to be fair in their judgment by applause."

Members of the large audience responded to her appeal and all four finalists received a great ovation. First prize went to Theresa Piper of Vancouver with Donna and Louise Comach of New Westminster winning third prizes, a cheque for $25 each.

"She's always wanted to make a career of singing," said her mother, Mrs. M. J. McCabe, as she waited for Donna backstage after the competition. "Now she will be more enthusiastic than ever."

"No, I won't give up school to study music, at least not yet," Donna said. "This trip to Vancouver has been a big thrill, but I still like Victoria best."

Donna and her mother arrived in Vancouver Thursday for the rehearsals at the Orpheum that evening. They are staying at the Hotel Vancouver and will remain for the week-end for as Donna said, "School takes up most of my time and it's not often I have a trip to Vancouver, in fact I haven't been over here for three years."

"Some Day My Prince Will Come" was the song chosen by Theresa Piper, 17, who, as winner of the B.C. contest, received a cheque for $100 and a trip to Toronto to compete in the Canadian finals, June 27. She represented Vancouver's suburban Stanley Theatre. Daughter of an English father and Russian mother, she was born in London, England, and also intends to make a career of singing.

Second prize, a cheque for $30, went to little Jean Parsons, aged 12, representing Alma Theatre contestants. Wearing a white frock with red basque bodice she also sang "Some Day My Prince Will Come." This song was the one chosen, too, by Louise Comach of New Westminster for the finals.

Last of the series of elimination contests for winners in suburban theatres took place on the stage just before the B.C. competition. Here Theresa Piper won the right to appear in the finals from Nancy Gippon of the Kitsilano Theatre who sang "Some Day My Prince Will Come," and from Jeantie Carrier of the Windsor Theatre who sang "I'm Wishing."

Each girl, accompanied by Dal Richards' orchestra, sang her song through once and then reappeared with the other contestants to again sing a few lines while the audience applauded.

Lectures usually given by the doctors," Miss Mitchell said.

J. E. Smith, pharmaceutical chemist, in his report said appointment of an assistant graduate pharmacist in 1943 had been justified as the pharmacy in the hospital is now dispensing a week-day average of more than 100 prescriptions.

Dr. Frederick Kincaid, T.B. superintendent at the Jubilee, said "the patient-days total for the pavilion was much the same as in previous years, but the number of patients treated was somewhat larger due to quicker turnover. There is a shortage of beds available in the province as a whole for tuberculosis cases, so that excessive hospitalization has to be avoided as far as possible. This is all to the good, but the provision of additional bed accommodation is under government consideration."

Dr. P. A. C. Cousland, registrar, in his report, said "the interne situation still gives rise for some concern. In conjunction with the accelerated medical course the junior interne term has been reduced from 12 to eight months. There are also fewer doctors graduating than there are interne positions. In spite of this the hospital has continued to handle all essential services to the patients."

Dr. D. M. Baillie, president of the active staff, said "the staff has been gratified to learn of the proposed new maternity wing and feel that it is going to be a great asset in the services of the hospital and to the general public."

Elizabeth M. Lawson, director of dietetics, said "the labor question has been serious, and at one time there was a complete turnover of the dining-room staff. The task of supervising and instructing new employees, only to have them leave, was very disheartening."

She showed that a total of 699, 273 meals, in addition to 36,027 diets, had been served during the year.

Other reports were received from Dr. H. H. Murphy, director of the Louisa Todd Memorial Department of Radiology, Dr. Gordon A. McCurdy, director of pathological laboratories; M. J. Madeley, maintenance chief; D. McDermid, laundry superintendent; Margaret I. Curry, secretary of the Senior Women's Auxiliary; Mrs. W. R. Parker, secretary of the Junior Women's Auxiliary; and Miss M. McBride, R.N., social service visitor.

The meeting named the following four directors: Mrs. E. Sheppard, E. E. Henderson, G. H. Stevens and E. C. Follock. The chairman of the board for the next year will be chosen at the next meeting, C. H. Williams, retiring after 25 years' service on the board, was thanked for his fine work for the hospital. Mr. McMullen and the directors were also heartily thanked by the donors for their good work in the last year. The meeting passed votes of thanks to all organizations which had helped the hospital in the last year.

Mrs. D. MacLoud, president of the Nurse's Alumni of the Jubilee Hospital, presented Dr. Walker with a cheque for $600 on behalf of the Alumni. This will go towards the new maternity wing.

Library Prepares Esquimalt Service

Readjustment of staff to provide adequate service for Esquimalt was under preparation at the Victoria Public Library this week as negotiations with that municipality for a new contract neared completion.

The new service, it was understood, would cover the year from July 1 and would cost Esquimalt in the neighborhood of $2,000, depending on the number of books used by residents.

To carry the extra work the library plans to engage at least one additional assistant this summer and may add two to the staff. One would be engaged at the desk handling the increased volume of borrowers from Esquimalt. The other would release a trained assistant to give advice to readers.

The new agreement with Esquimalt would terminate the contract between the library and Wartime Housing in that municipality since the general service would cover the latter group. Books would also go out to Esquimalt schools for the fall term under the plan now being completed.

Margaret J. Clay, librarian, who is making the arrangements, also announced this week an additional $500 to be spent on books will be devoted in part to duplication of popular fiction and to addition of new books, particularly in the technical field and covering such subjects as ship-building.

A total of $9,000 worth of books has been ordered since Jan. 1. Deliveries have been slow, but a number of rare books on art recently reached this city from England.

Gains of 500 and 300 were reported in city and Oak Bay registrations since the beginning of the year.

Sgt. Bob Dickson Wounded In France

Sgt. R. P. (Bob) Dickson, 23, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Dickson, 2513 Asquith Street, has been hospitalized in England with a bullet wound in his right knee, sustained during the invasion operations in France. Dickson enlisted in 1939, proceeded overseas three years ago. He received his education at Beacon Hill and George Jay Schools, was employed before the war by the Victoria Tug Company.

Water System Extension Listed

To meet the increasing needs of Greater Victoria's population, estimated at 92,000 for the purpose of the survey in 1943, the city water department undertook extensive enlargement of mains last year, according to a report filed out for the Public Utilities Commission by city authorities today.

During the year 697 feet of six-inch, 1,423 feet of four-inch, and 555 feet of two-inch pipe were removed and 1,476 feet of eight-inch, 167 feet of six-inch, 722 feet of four-inch, 1,780 feet of two-inch and 988 feet of 1½-inch pipe were laid.

The average daily consumption was listed at 12,134,000 gallons. The city supplies, through Oak Bay and Saanich, 9,090 users, and through its own channels 10,333 in the city itself and 2,450 outside the city, Saanich and Oak Bay limits.

Saanich, City Active In Building Field

Saanich and the city showed continued activity in the civilian construction field during the week ending today with the two departments listing work of a total value over $58,000.

In Saanich, 18 permits, including seven for new houses, were granted. Total value was $33,256. The new dwellings were: Six-room, $5,800 house on the inter-urban line, six-room, $5,700 house at 1205 Clovelly Terrace, six-room, $5,500 house on Queenswood, four-room, $3,750 house at 3951 Douglas, four-room, $3,350 house for 845 Swan, five-room, $3,300 at 214 Burnside and two-room $500 dwelling at Sylvan Beach.

In the city itself, 14 permits were granted for work listed at $25,415. They included three new homes, a blacksmith's shop and two major office alterations costing $4,000 and $2,000 respectively. Esquimalt reported no activity.

Berries 16½c Box

With berry growers' request for extension of the present ceiling price on strawberries to hold throughout the season, denied by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board at Ottawa, the berries will sell Monday for 16½ cents a box, instead of 22 cents a box.

Island growers have signified their intention of supplying Victoria consumers with berries at prices as near to the city as possible.

Harry Bannister In 'Father' Role

Harry Bannister, ex-husband of the screen star Ann Harding, is in Victoria today with the "Life With Father" company. This authentic play of authentic people, by Clarence Day Jr., which played at the Empire Theatre in New York for six months and has been on tour for a year, will be presented at the Royal Victoria Theatre tonight.

"He takes the role of Father."

Bannister said at the Empress today that he is anticipating the termination of his tour at Denver July 1, so that he can get back to his farm at Stewartville, New Jersey. His present wife, Leah, and their six-year-old daughter Phoebe, are awaiting him on the farm.

While playing in Los Angeles, Bannister saw his 16-year-old daughter Jane, by his first wife. She is attending the Norwood School for Girls. She has no ambition to go into the movies, said Bannister.

C.C.F. Jap Attitude Unacceptable-Anscomb

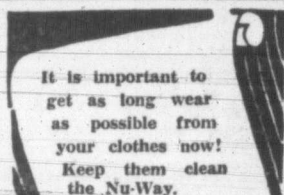

Public Works Minister Herbert Anscomb said today the attitude of the C.C.F. in British Columbia to the Japanese question will keep the socialist party from ever attaining power in this province.

"The people of British Columbia know where they stand with the Japanese," he said. "The C.C.F. not only wants to retain them here, but would give them the vote, and I'm convinced the people of this province will never endorse it."

Mr. Anscomb predicted the C.C.F. would be "stopped cold" in the next general election in B.C.

"The C.C.F. victory in Saskatchewan was apparently what the people wanted there, but it has absolutely no bearing on the desires of the residents of B.C.," the minister said. After the next election, he said, the C.C.F. will be lucky if they retained their present 16 seats in the Legislature, certainly they would not make gains, he said.

Mr. Anscomb said a majority of the people of Saskatchewan, 54 per cent, are foreigners; B.C. on the other hand is full of British stock "who don't lose their heads."

Canadian M.T.B.'s Help to Keep Channel Clear

By LT-CMDR. GEORGE LAWRENCE

On the bridge of an M.T.B., Lt. Joe Adam (right), son of the late Alderman "Jimmy" Adam of Victoria and Mrs. Adam, who now makes her home in Vancouver, and Lt. L. Craig Bishop of Quebec.

Swift defenders of D-Day's mighty invasion armada, two Royal Canadian Navy's torpedo boat flotillas have since fought courageous and successful actions to assure safe crossing of the English Channel for reinforcements and supplies.

Although in the past Canada has contributed heavily in officer material for M.T.B. flotillas, it was not until comparatively recently that she completely manned two flotillas of her own. These are operated by Admiralty in conjunction with other light coastal forces.

Since the early days of coastal forces organization, Canadians on loan to the Royal Navy have made themselves famous for their work in small, light, hard-hitting motor boats. At one time much of the seagoing officer personnel at some bases was Canadian, and the manning of two flotillas has taken only a portion of those working in R.N. craft.

FAMOUS VETERANS

Among her motor torpedo boat officers Canada may count some of the most famous veterans of one of the most thrilling, most spectacular jobs of the war.

Take, for instance, "Tony" Law—Lt. Cdr. Anthony Law, Mention in Dispatches, R.C.N.V.R. of Quebec—Tony has taken his high-powered cockle shell of a motor boat over to the German-occupied French and Dutch coasts in search of trouble something over 120 times. And that's not counting the time he put in back in '40 before he got his own command.

Take "Bones" Burk—Lt. Charles Arthur Burk, D.S.C., Mention in Dispatches, R.C.N.V.R. of Toronto—who back in the early days of "light coastal forces" got down on his knees on the side of a speeding power boat and pushed a depth charge over the side and under the bow of a German merchantman, which they were passing so close he could almost have struck a match on her side. And then, as his C.O. turned back on his course and raced down the other side of the German, Bones shoved another depth charge under her while a machinegunner up top peppered shot down at them. They sank the merchantman.

Lt. Cdr. J. R. H. "Kirk" Kirkpatrick, R.C.N.V.R. of Kitchener, Ont., just awarded the D.S.C. "for outstanding courage and skill" in small boats, leader of one of the new Canadian flotillas.

Lt. Cdr. Law leads the other; Lt. Oliver Mabee, R.C.N.V.R. of Toronto, and Lt. L. R. McLennan, D.S.C., R.C.N.V.R. of Montreal are famous for their exploits in the Mediterranean, off Dover, and along the south and east coasts.

There are others, some newer, some famed veterans like those above: Lt. Dave Killam, D.S.C., R.C.N.V.R. of Vancouver; Lt. Bob Moyse, R.C.N.V.R. of Winnipeg; Lt. Craig Bishop, R.C.N.V.R. of Sherbrooke, Que.; Lt. Charles Chaffey, R.C.N.V.R. of Vancouver and Montreal; Lt. Glen Crebba, R.C.N.V.R. of Winnipeg; Lt. A. P. Morrow, R.C.N.V.R. of Vancouver; Lt. M. C. Knox, R.C.N.V.R. of Montreal; Lt. J. W. Collins, R.C.N.V.R. of Toronto; Lt. S. O. Greening, R.C.N.V.R. of Hamilton; Lt. G. Moors of Fort William, Ont.; Lt. Vernon Barlow, R.C.N.V.R. of Vancouver; Lt. Joseph Adam, R.C.N.V.R. of Victoria; Lt. Keith Scobie, R.C.N.V.R. of Ottawa; Lt. Duncan Jessiman, R.C.N.V.R. of Winnipeg.

Is War Effort 'All Out?' Seven In Ten Think It Is

By CANADIAN INSTITUTE OF PUBLIC OPINION

TORONTO—Public opinion in Canada is more convinced today that the Dominion's war effort is really "all out" than at any previously recorded time.

In August, 1942, a year later, and again today, the Canadian Institute tested the attitude of the "typical" citizen towards the national war effort by putting this question to a carefully-selected cross-section of the population:

"Do you think Canada is doing all she can to help win the war?"

The answers show a definite trend, and a sharp change in the course of two years.

Compared with the shifts in opinion over the nation as a whole, the attitude of Quebec has been outstandingly consistent. Each time this issue was put before the public through the polls, an overwhelming majority in Quebec have felt that Canada was doing all she could to help win the war. To show comparative course of public opinion in Quebec, and throughout the rest of Canada, the "Yes" vote received in the oldest province is compared with the combined "Yes" vote obtained in the other eight provinces.

Percent who think war effort "all out"

Province	1942	1943	Today
Quebec	79%	84%	87%
Rest of Canada	44%	67%	69%

LIBERALS SUPPORT HIGH

It will be seen that in August of 1942, while nearly nine in every 10 persons in Quebec thought Canada was doing all she could to win the war, less than half the people in the rest of Canada thought so. The difference is much less marked today.

Conviction as to the adequacy of the war effort is, as might be expected, considerably stronger among those Canadians who today support the Liberal Party than among supporters of the other two major parties:

Party	Yes	No	Undecided
Liberal Pro.-Cons. C.P.F.	83%	6%	11%
Cons.	68%	24%	8%
Unaffiliated	8%	8%	84%

Comments obtained in the course of this survey indicate that the biggest single reason advanced by the minority who think Canada is not doing all she can to win the war centred around the method of raising men for overseas service. Others claimed that too many profits were being made; that plants were being closed down unnecessarily; or that there was "too much politics" in the war effort.

Canadian Club Members Exchange Reminiscences

Rev. George Biddle was unanimously elected president of the Canadian Club for the second consecutive year at the annual meeting of the club in the Empress Hotel Friday.

Principal officers elected were also the same as last year. They were: Lieut.-Gov. W. C. Woodward, honorary president; Col. Eric Pepler, first vice-president; J. D. Munro, second vice-president; and F. J. Sehl, secretary-treasurer.

Committee members elected were: Geo. H. Gowan, past-president; F. L. Shaw, F. J. Staghall, John Cochran, Sir Henry Drayton, Capt. R. A. Wootton, T. P. Waters, and Henry B. Howard.

Following the election, Mr. Sehl read his report on the activities of the year and submitted his financial statement.

Speaking of the object of the Canadian Club in his report as president, Mr. Biddle said, "We take care to admit to membership only those who accept moral responsibility for leadership in a progressive and finer Canada... and a Canada firm and strong within the framework of the British Commonwealth of Nations."

MANY SERVING COUNTRY
Bearing in mind the club was functioning under wartime conditions, he said, he was pleased with the progress of the club. Many of the members were serving their country, he said, and the club was proud of their achievements and looked forward to their return.

He pleaded for the continued support of the members at what he termed "this turning point of history," and asked where the men of the fighting front would be if the home front failed them.

"The Canadian Club offers the medium for constructive building in the finest traditions of our race," he said.

Mr. Sehl then read a portion of the first chapter of the history of the club written by W. Straith, giving the essentials of its beginning in Hamilton, Ontario, in 1892, until the first gathering of the Victoria club was called together in 1906.

On mention of the fact the club was in its 38th year, it was noted one of the original charter members, F. G. Pell, was present.

Following Mr. Sehl, John Cochran gave a talk on his experiences as president of the club some 25 years ago. He recalled in particular one experience in 1915, following the close of the last war when he obtained as speakers for the club the then Secretary of the U.S. Navy, J.

Daniels, and Admiral Hugh Rodman.

On their return from Pearl Harbor, where they had attended for the installation of the gravestone there, said Mr. Cochran, Mr. Daniels' radioed to San Francisco that he, in one ship, and Admiral Rodman in another, with an escort of four destroyers, were sailing to Victoria to keep an appointment.

Then, said Mr. Cochran, there was a great hustle, Ottawa was wired from whence came the order for an 11-gun salute to the arrival of the officials, and the city had what was practically a municipal holiday.

He then repeated, word for word, the introductory speech he had given before the Canadian Club on introducing the speakers who had come to keep their appointment there.

TELLS OF NORTHWEST

F. C. Green, Surveyor-General of B. C., then gave a speech on "Communications in Northwest Canada," starting with the year 1741 when the Russian explorers of Peter the Great had set out to search the Bering Sea to discover whether or not Asia and America were one continent.

He then noted discovery of the sea otter and consequent establishment of furposts on the Alaska coast, which remained until, in 1867, the U.S. bought the Russian colony for slightly over $7,000,000.

Next event in the history of communications in the northwest he related was the search, in 1778, by Capt. Cook, who drove north through the Bering Straits, looking for the northwest passage, until he was stopped by the ice-sheet.

In 1867, Mr. Green continued, following the failure of the attempt to lay an Atlantic cable, Western Union set out to lay cable up through Alaska with the intention of carrying on over the Bering Straits and eventually communicating with Europe.

Successful laying of the Atlantic cable in 1868, he said, halted the project. Suspension bridges had later been seen, he said, constructed by the Indians of the abandoned cable.

In 1904, he said, a railway company, with the intention of connecting America and Europe by rail, sent out survey parties to see if such an idea might be plausible. Reports sent in favored the building of such a railway, he said, but the Russo-Japanese war broke out and plans were abandoned.

He spoke of the communications made when the C.P.R. and C.N.R. drove their steel tracks across the Rocky Mountains.

In the Klondike gold rush in 1897-98, he said, Inspector Moodie of the N.W.M.P. was sent from Fort St. John with the object of discovering if there might be a possibility of putting through a wagon road to the Klondike.

The policeman sent in a good report, Mr. Green said, and when, in 1942, American troops started to push through the Alaska Highway, the old Moodie report was looked up and found it might be useful.

Washington was notified, he said, and became interested, and the Japanese situation was so acute that any plan to utilize it had to be abandoned, and the highway was pushed through as it was started.

He concluded by giving a brief outline of the vast resources of the north.

Mr. Green's talk was immediately followed by a new motion picture entitled "Look to the North," put on by C. R. W. Farris, photographer of the provincial government bureau, and which graphically upheld Mr. Green's talk, showing pictures of the vast countries of the north, their early development, and finally the tremendous surge of activity that came about at the advent of the Japanese crisis, ending with an appeal for the continued development of that country.

Mr. Gowan, past president, thanked Mr. Green and Mr. Farris for their contributions to the club's program.

4 Superforts Lost in Attack

WASHINGTON (AP)—Four of the United States new B-29 Superforts were lost in Thursday's attack on Yawata, the 20th Air Force announced.

Adding new details to earlier sketchy announcements of the raid, the communiqué said two of the mammoth planes went down due to accidents, one was lost over the target and a fourth is missing.

L. H. Borde Retires

Members of the staff of the government printing bureau met in the composing room to honor Leon H. Borde upon his retirement after 43 years with this branch of the government.

B. E. Lefevre, on behalf of the staff, spoke of the high regard with which Mr. Borde has been held by his fellow-employees, then presented him with a traveling bag, accompanied by an illustrated book of remembrance which had been signed by all members of the staff.

'Now Voyager' To Show at York

Bette Davis' new leading man is the tallest, the most romantic—straight out of Vienna, with a title to boot—and probably the handsomest fellow who ever threw an arm around her. This is as it should be. The plot of her new Warner Bros. picture, "Now, Voyager," coming Monday to the York Theatre, calls for the most interesting love scenes Bette has ever played.

His name is Paul Henreid. His full name, which he has shortened because he is on his way to becoming an American citizen, is Paul Henreid, Baron von Wasele-Waldingau. That is the title the late Emperor Franz Josef bestowed on Paul's father, a Swede, who showed the old Emperor how to make a lot of money.

Matador Returns To Horse Racing

MEXICO CITY (CP)—When 23-year-old Teodora Espejel, current riding sensation at the Hipodromo de las Americas, left the bullring for the race track last season, he already was a veteran jockey.

The ex-bullfighter, who recently set a track record of five winners in a day, first rode in a horse race at the age of six.

At 12 he appeared in his first bullfight wearing a costume. He found there was more money in killing bulls than in riding horses. But the races he had worked were the Mexican small town events in which two horses compete after the owner of one challenges the other.

When big-time racing returned to Mexico City last year, Espejel decided it was horses for him again.

NEW PRESIDENT—M. J. Smith, who has been elected president of the Canadian Life Insurance Officers' Association, succeeding H. W. Manning of the Great West Life Assurance Co. Mr. Smith is president and general manager of the Equitable Life Insurance Co. of Canada.

CLEVELAND (AP)—Ray Mack, Cleveland Indian second baseman for four seasons until he went on the voluntary retired list and remained on a war job this year, has been reinstated on the active player list by Judge Kenesaw M. Landis, and will be available for most of the Indians' games, the Cleveland club announced Friday.

Sir Matthew Baillie Begbie Chapter, I.O.E., met Friday afternoon, Mrs. T. R. Murphy, regent, presiding. Mrs. M. Dutot reported war stamps to the value of $18.50 sold at the booth. Mrs. V. Pritchett, welfare convener, visited shut-ins on Shut-in Day, and presented gifts from the chapter. Mrs. D. Dakers was appointed convener for ex-servicemen. Plans were completed for the chapter's part in the I.O.E. garden party. Knitting meeting will be held June 27 at 2.30 at the home of Mrs. P. Cunningham, suite 1, Parkside Apartments, Cook Street.

'Life With Father' Returns Tonight

Tonight America's laugh riot, featuring Harry Bannister and Mary Loane, will come to the stage of the Royal Theatre.

"Life With Father," hailed as the funniest play in 20 years, is concerned with the comic domestic adventures of a real American family; the red-headed Clarence Shepard Days, during the era of bustles and bicycles, gaslight and plush furniture, in the New York of the Eighties.

Howard Lindsay and Russel Crouse dramatized "Life With Father" from the best-selling books of the late Clarence Day, who wrote about his parents and brothers in "Life With Father," "Life With Mother" and "God and My Father."

The cast of the show in addition to Harry Bannister and Mary Loane is composed of Rose Flynn, Harry Irvine, James Jolley, Raymond Bramley, Katherine Cody Forbes, Elsa Johnson, Jean Martin, Mary McNamee, Hope Townsend White, James Allen, David Seldis, Donald Hastings and Billy Nevard.

Newshound Upsets Scientific Venture

Philip Merrivale, Donald Meek and Sara Haden play mother and father, in effect, to six-year-old Margaret O'Brien in "Lost Angel," new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer film coming Monday to the Capitol Theatre.

As professors in a group which undertakes to develop a prodigy from a founding infant, they do from a thorough job. It all goes for nothing when a newspaper reporter discovers the child and proceeds to disrupt her scientific rearing.

James Craig is the reporter and also has the leading romantic role opposite Marsha Hunt. Roy Rowland, directed with Robert Sisk producing, from a story by Isobel Lennart.

"Lost Angel" is Margaret O'Brien's first starring picture following her triumph in "Journey For Margaret."

Prewar Canvas Shades 'Phantom'

Biggest tarpaulin set utilized at Universal in years was constructed on the lot's "New York Street" for night exterior shots in "Phantom Lady," starring Franchot Tone and Ella Raines, with Alan Curtis, coming Monday to the Oak Bay and Plaza Theatres.

Black tarpaulin blanketed 810 feet of the main thoroughfare and sections of two intersecting "brownstone streets," with an over-all ceiling of 42 feet.

Best Seller Book Filmed at Atlas

20th Century-Fox's inspiring film version of "Happy Land," Mackinlay Kantor's great American story of the joys and sorrows, defeats and triumphs, and valiant courage of everyday Americans, is scheduled to open Monday at the Atlas Theatre.

Don Ameche, Frances Dee, Harry Carey and Ann Rutherford head the featured cast, which also includes Cara Williams, Richard Crane, Henry Morgan, Minor Watson and Dickie Moore.

"Happy Land" was directed by Irving Pichel and produced by Kenneth Macgowan. Kathryn Scola and Julian Josephson wrote the screen play.

CADET THEATRE

What happens when a dollar-a-year man in Washington tries to do too much too fast, makes up the exciting theme of RKO Radio's new starring vehicle for Olivia de Havilland, featuring Sonny Tufts, "Government Girl." Anne Shirley and Jess Barker head the supporting cast, which is being shown at the Cadet Theatre.

Perjury Charged

VANCOUVER (CP)—Stanley H. Ewing, manager of the Dunbar Street branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, will be formally committed next Tuesday for trial on a charge of perjury. Magistrate Mackenzie Matheson announced today.

The perjury charge was laid by C. H. Cahan Jr., who was convicted in 1938 of a charge of robbing the bank of $69 and sentenced to seven years in the penitentiary. Cahan claims Ewing gave false testimony regarding his identification of Cahan at the trial.

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian airmen, carrying the war to occupied Europe in growing strength since Dunkerque, long ago selected the area between Havre and Cherbourg for invasion, said one of them here today.

FO Johnny Caine, who wears a D.S.C. and Bar, said the invasion coast was a logical spot, as "the only opposition we have met in that area has been about four guns and some rifles."

Victoria Nature Walks

By ROBERT CONNELL

RUS IN URBE

While the countryside becomes steadily more urbanized, it is interesting to see how wild nature retains its hold on the city. Except in the very heart of the business section it is not at all difficult to come upon some little fragment of the primitive plant life of this tip of Vancouver Island. Only today, as the soft June rain fell, I saw a patch of the rose purple flowers of the wild onion known as Hooker's, growing but a step from the pavement, and close to where a few weeks earlier the sessile-leaved or Nuttall's Solomon's seal was in bloom.

Vacant lots where they have not yet been turned into Victory gardens are fruitful spots for the stay-at-home lover of wild flowers. It is quite remarkable what a variety of native plants appear in due season in them. In one the patient waiter for a streetcar may see now the velvety yellow of one of the cinquefoils, and next month he may find a pretty little species of one of the rein orchids, the elegant Habenaria, and still another orchid, the Spiranthus or ladies' tresses. Both these orchids are white, and while the individual flowers are small their occurrence in spikes attracts the eye of the more than casual observer. At the other extreme is the huge cow parsnip whose great leaves are a wonder in themselves, while the flat umbels of scented cream-white flowers rise on stems that may overtop a tall man's head. Liking moist, shady places, the cow parsnip finds its city home in ground below the level of the sidewalk and in close alliance with rose thickets or the somewhat scant shade of aspen poplars.

Nor does the plant-lover despise ditches, if only because in the older or at least less disturbed ones he may find charming flowers. In one ditch on the outskirts of the Spring Ridge area I saw that fine buttercup, the straight-beaked, flourishing exceedingly some years ago. In such places as well as in low areas where water lies late, the sneezeweed or Helenium is a conspicuous object when in August it displays its bright yellow heads with their disk flowers arranged in a round head surrounded by the toothed rays at its base.

With so many flower gardens about, it is to be expected that a certain number of cultivated species will make their escape to the outer world of wild land. While the numbers are as yet small, the exodus has at any rate begun. Some are to be found along Dallas Road cliffs where the waste of gardens has been thrown. Others in vacant lots from the same cause. The most interesting and no doubt the most permanent of these new settlers are those that have found a home by their own innate ingenuity so to speak, and so have gone further afield. Such are the pretty little carmine maiden pink and the bright red centaury, both of which have been found in the fields adjacent to the Pemberton Woods, where, too, during a recent Natural History Society excursion the blue woodruff was found by Mr. Palmer. Old-fashioned garden plants are often found in the vicinity of pioneer homes even long after the buildings have decayed or

Letters to the Editor

THANKS FOR FRANCE

On behalf of L'Alliance France Libre and the French-Canadian Club, may I thank the Victoria Daily Times for the generous space it gave in photograph and announcements of the two successful evenings held in support of the Children of France Fund (care of the Canadian Red Cross) at the Victoria Little Theatre.

Through your columns, we would also like to express our gratitude to the members of the Victoria Little Theatre and their president, Mr. H. T. Davis, for their unhesitating assistance. The three play directors, Mrs. Audrey St. Denys-Johnson, Miss Elizabeth Smith and Mrs. Edith Gibson, with their casts, will long be remembered, not only for their fine talents but also their kindness, which the French players felt keenly. This spirit fitted the hour, since the opening performance took place on D-Day, when our Canadian sons joined in the heroic battle, with French patriots, for the deliverance of France and the world.

If, today, $685.78 have been collected for the sick babies of France, the Victoria Little Theatre most assuredly helped to raise this sum. They will be glad to hear that the Canadian Red Cross Headquarters, 602 Broughton Street, will leave "The Aid to Disappeared" when I last visited Jordan Meadows, a number of tiny dark panes bore evidence of the flower beds of long ago. On a larger scale the late George Fraser's Ucclet garden has enriched the neighborhood with an overflow of plants of the heath family, including the Scottish heather and the New Zealand prickly heath or Pernettya.

the Children of France Fund" open a few weeks more for further donations so desperately needed.

STILL MORE MILK

The inconsistencies and contradictions in Mr. Abraham's argument are obvious: He talks about cures and pooh-pooh's palliatives, but at the same time completely ignores a positive cure for the bacilli in milk when it is shown and proven by years of investigation by a medical expert. At the very least such reasoning must be classified as irrational.

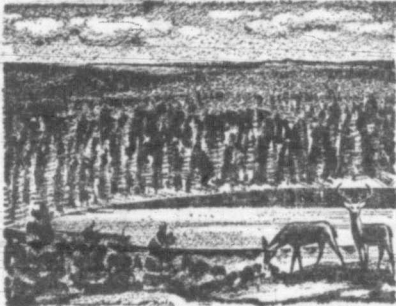

All I know about cows or the pasteurization of milk could be written on the head of a pin, but I do claim to have sufficient sense to recognize the advice of scientific experts, who after years of intense investigation, give their findings to the world. For Mr. Abraham's information, I am delighted to say that I pride myself on having sufficient knowledge and common sense to ignore completely the ravings of armchair philosophers, not only in regard to the pasteurization of milk, but many other deleterious and humanly degrading factors that are part of the propaganda of today.

Oak Bay United W.M.S. met in the church parlor, Mrs. J. Laird presiding. Devotional period was taken by Mrs. J. Wren, and Mrs. O. Brown spoke on her work among the East Indians in the city. Mrs. Mary Gardiner, Mrs. C. M. Henry and Miss J. Ferguson were appointed program committee. W.M.S. and W.A. will hold a joint picnic at the home of Mrs. George Beeson, 3020 Quadra Street, July 6.

TIME..AND TREES..AND MEN

There comes a time in the life of every growing thing when it reaches its zenith and begins to decline into the dust of the earth from whence it came. Youth, maturity and old age—these are the inevitable stages in the cycle of all life.

THE good earth of British Columbia has an insatiable urge to grow trees. It nurtures them through all their years until their strength is spent and they can grow no more. If these mature trees are to contribute a maximum of service to mankind they must then be cut; they must be put to use; they must make way for younger growth.

WHEN first the logger's axe rang through the cathedral arches of these forests, there were actually too many full-grown trees. They had to be cut, and quickly. They were even put to the torch, burned down to create living space for fast-growing settlements; so that men might work to fill the need for lumber in the markets of the world.

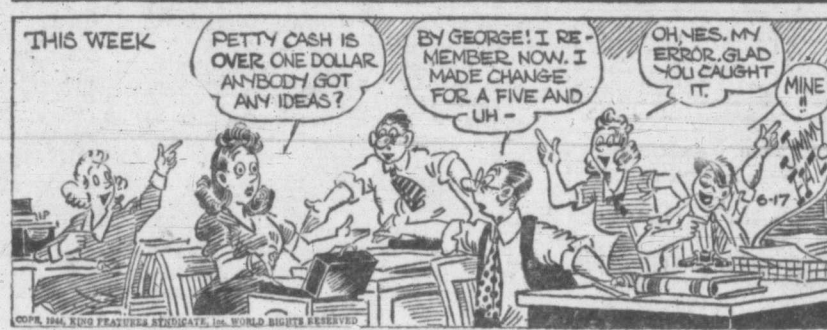

OUR forests seemed inexhaustible then. No one had ever heard of conservation. They simply cut the trees according to the methods of that day; they served the urgent need to build the growing West. The logs were fashioned into lumber, the lumber into homes and workshops and stores, upon the very spot where the trees were cut.

INTO this scene came Bloedel's, men of vision and courage, prepared to take the risks and win the rewards of their initiative. They cut the trees, supplied the needs at home and abroad and received their due rewards. And every person living here today is living the better because of the pioneering of those loggers of a time that is past.

Naval Cadets Receive Pictures

Mrs. Massy Gooldeen, honorary president of the W.A. to the R.C.N., presented framed pictures of Their Majesties to the senior and junior gun rooms of the Royal Canadian Naval College, Thursday, on behalf of the members.

Chief Cadet J. R. Chipman received the presentation, and Capt. J. M. Grant addressed the assembly of cadets and the 45 members of the W.A.

There was a gymnastic display later at which the members were spectators.

Mrs. Praeger, 87, widow of Dr. Praeger, who came to B.C. in the nineties and lived for a time in Victoria and Duncan, died recently in South Pasadena. In addition to general practice, Dr. Praeger was for a time a mines official at Nanaimo.
